The call of the Kookaburra.

Sorry buddy, this is your line of crap not mine. I'm sure you know all about what you reference. This is just you projecting again.

Being in the NRA means nothing you kook. All you have to do is pay a fee to be a member.

It does worry me you might have a gun since you appear so irresponsible and kooky.

If al-Qaeda, the Taliban and the rest of the Looney Tunes brigade want to kick America to death, they had better move in quickly and grab a piece of the action before Barack Obama finishes the job himself.
Never in the history of the United States has a president worked so actively against the interests of his own people - not even Jimmy Carter.

Obama’s problem is that he does not know who the enemy is. To him, the enemy does not squat in caves in Waziristan, clutching automatic weapons and reciting the more militant verses from the Koran: instead, it sits around at tea parties in Kentucky quoting from the US Constitution. Obama is not at war with terrorists, but with his Republican fellow citizens. He has never abandoned the campaign trail.

I'm not a Hitler lover, he was way closer to you, politically, and probably about as crazy as he was too.....

From the stuff you posted recently, that most certainly is a lie.
Nothing you say really shocks me at this point, Telemundoh, but it still amuses me.

LOL, it's the only club/association/society I belong to presently, well, except for the humane society. I bet you belong to all kinds of right wing kooktardic groups with a very select membership, right?

LOL, in your dreams, again. Your family would be so thrilled if you were as "irresponsible and kooky" as I am. It would make them so happy for you to be "in remission". Fat chance of it happening at this stage of your life.

Just like this moron BDK the Dem's in congress don't believe in free speech.

They don't want Al to look bad. Well they are way to late for that.

That you are projecting, sure thing. Well agree on something.

I belong to organizations like ieee and technical users groups. You are either an engineer, use certain technology, or live in the area so the membership is somewhat select. No kook's like you would be put up with.

Am I dreaming when I read your posts? Nope. You are an obvious hazard where responsibility is concerned by the tenor of your posts. I would not be in the area where you have possession of a gun.

You are an idiot. The same money could be used to employ the same people to repair or modernize an overcrowded airport that is actually used. Not one that has 20 passengers per day. That is a total waste and even a close minded liberal has to be able to see it.

As some warn victory, some downfall
Private reasons great or small
Can be seen in the eyes of those that call
To make all that should be killed to crawl
While others say don't hate nothing at all Except hatred.

Disillusioned words like bullets bark
As human gods aim for their mark
Made everything from toy guns that spark
To flesh-colored Christs that glow in the dark
It's easy to see without looking too far That not much
Is really sacred.

You ought to see Farish Street nowadays.
Last time I went down town was last September right after I bought my new old 1983 Dodge van (I am the second owner of that van, it has about 143,000 miles on it, hardly broke in yet) to get my paper work done and a license plate for my van.Of course I had no reason to go to Farish Street, so I didn't.It is a real nice van.It is one of them RV vans.It has big windows on the sides and captains chairs/seats and the rear seat converts into a bed.That will come in handy for my wimmins.
Hey, there is big street repaving thingy going on in many parts of Jackson right now.It sure does need it too.

Better me in possession of a gun or guns, than you in possession of Obama's BC, since I know how to use a gun, but a BC seems to be a mystery to you.

And it does from someone as bitter and tired as you? Really Telemundoh, you're so sour, you make a lemon seem sweet. Maybe it's aches and pains, or the beginning of senile dementia. Whatever it is, you need to lighten up..

People don't put up with "clowns" like you. You would just be ignored the first time and then not admitted after that. I have seen people of your disposition come and go but they at least had some brains. You don't even have that going for you.

You being in possession of any weapon is a bad thing for anyone in the area. I'm glad you don't live around here Kookaburra.

I have heard so far some Espanol (Spanish, for those in Glendale) and what certainly seemed to be a KKZN ID at 2:05 AM (0605 UT).

Plenty of QRN (Lightning, for those in Glendale) from storms just north and west of me, causing a lot of grief.

I'm not the one doing the clown act, I'm just observing, and commenting on your performance. You're a very bitter old assclown.

So when will you abandon the Obama BC kookery? At what point will you admit, it's not going anywhere, and move on to the next kooktardic

WJR brought their transmitter up at about 3:53 AM ET (0753 UT), seemingly did some testing, (a lot of 'white noise'), and resumed programming at 4:20 AM ET (0820 UT).

Pink noise is often used to test frequency response and bandwidth in audio systems.

There have been roughly 70 deaths in Mexico from the outbreak; so far there have been no deaths from the U.S. outbreak."

"Why so much fuss about a few deaths from flu? Because the pattern of the outbreak and infection in the US and Mexico reveals some remarkable similarities to the 1918 swine flu killer global pandemic. Why is Soros enjoying the global economic meltdown?

Soros and his hedge fund made $2.9 billion (yes, billion) betting against the United States economy. As if that wasn't bad enough, this same man also donated over $32 million to liberal candidates and liberal causes across the United States. Which leads to a simple question... What does it say about the character of George Soros? And what does it say about the liberals who happily took the anti-US Soros contributions?

So when George Soros, a key funder of the liberal extremist group MoveOn.org, recently told an Australian news organization that the current global economic mess has been "stimulating" we took notice. You'll remember, MoveOn.org compared President George W. Bush to Adolph Hitler, and criticized US Army General David Petraeus, calling him "General Betray Us."

Why is Soros enjoying the global economic meltdown?

Soros and his hedge fund made $2.9 billion (yes, billion) betting against the United States economy. As if that wasn't bad enough, this same man also donated over $32 million to liberal candidates and liberal causes across the United States. Which leads to a simple question... What does it say about the character of George Soros? And what does it say about the liberals who happily took the anti-US Soros contributions?

So when George Soros, a key funder of the liberal extremist group MoveOn.org, recently told an Australian news organization that the current global economic mess has been "stimulating" we took notice. You'll remember, MoveOn.org compared President George W. Bush to Adolph Hitler, and criticized US Army General David Petraeus, calling him "General Betray Us."

==========

Soros is a genius. Cheney resorted to criminal enterprises to make billions.
You should go to MoveOn.org and then READ their articles and then decide for yourself if MoveOn.org is really, "the liberal extremist group" you've been told it is.

Today's offerings:
Small businesses ask Congress to support clean energy jobs - MoveOn members met directly with several lawmakers to convey support from small businesses in their districts for President Obama's clean energy jobs plan.

Save 30% on health care? - If Americans are given the choice of a quality public health insurance option similar to Medicare, we could all save up to 30% on our health care costs.

Accountability for torture - So far, the architects of Bush's torture program have not been held accountable.

Power Up America! - a new grassroots campaign for a clean energy economy.

Now, where's this great big life threatening agenda you imply??? Seems to me to be quite normal for concerned Americans but then that's what bothers you rightwing al-Qaeda, isn't it? Soros is successful and didn't break the law like republicans always do. That just burns your controllers at FOX.

I have a Mint RX-350 Shortwave Receiver with manual and origional receipts.
An awsome receiver!
100kHz to 30 MHz Demodulation, filtering, passband tuning and AGC are all done by digital signal processing (DSP). In addition the DSP functions include an automatic notch filter and adaptive noise filtering. Reception modes supported are AM, USB/LSB, CW (700 Hz BFO offset) and Digital (1000Hz BFO offset). The receiver has 34 available IF bandwidths for any type of signal under all reception conditions!

I also have the optional 302R remote tuning knob/keypad and the 307B external speaker enclosure which matches the receiver. AC cord and DC plug as well.

Serious interest only please. Email me at jodi.ron@gmail.com for more information.

Thank you,
Ron

1528. The ObaMa0 attack on Talk Radio is Real -- Call to Action

There are more strong signals coming from the Obama Administration reflecting an intent to put Talk Radio out of business -- or at least reshape it to censor critical voices and points of view.

When I launched UnFairAir (www.unfairair.org) some weeks ago, we knew that several U.S. Senators had publicly called for a re-instatement of the "Fairness Doctrine"; we knew that draft FCC regulations mandating "localism" and "diversity of ownership" had been circulating since early 2008; we also knew that the Obama transition team had vetted pro-Fairness Doctrine appointees to the FCC.

What we now also know is that the Obama Administration is circulating a proposal for a new "spectrum use" tax and another proposal for "diversity" of station ownership -- mandating racial and gender quotas as to who should be "allowed" to own radio stations.

What's at stake here ? Simply put--Free Speech on the Radio.

Here's the history in a nutshell that you need to know.

There are 4,789 AM broadcast radio stations licensed in the U.S. Over 2,000 of these program some kind of "talk show" on every conceivable topic in every imaginable language. The "Fairness Doctrine", conceived in the 1920's when a few dozen stations dominated the airwaves is silly in light of today's reality of thousands of listening choices.

Nonetheless, Senator Dick Durbin (D--Ill) in March submitted an amendment to the D.C. Voting Bill which would require the FCC to affirmatively "encourage and promote diversity in...media ownership" and reaffirming FCC authority to mandate the presentation "of opposing points of view on issues of public importance".

Senator Durbin's language faithfully echoed the language written by Senator Barack Obama on 9/20/07 in a letter to the FCC using the "localism" argument on behalf of Jesse Jackson in a dispute with a Chicago radio station.

http://www.fcc.gov/ownership/hearing-chicago092007.html

In June, 2007, the Center for American Progress ( http://www.discoverthenetworks.org/groupProfile.asp?grpid=6709 led by Clinton aide John Podesta http://www.discoverthenetworks.org/individualProfile.asp?indid=1626
published "The Structural Imbalance of Political Talk Radio" which made the argument that Big Corporate ownership favored right wing talk radio and excluded left wing talk radio. The answer to the problem? Government mandated diversity of station ownership. If left wing talk radio can't compete in the marketplace (a fact that is beyond dispute), then Big Government must mandate it. [HEIL HITLER!]

In November 2008, John Podesta was co-chair of the Obama Transition. Podesta appointed pro-Fairness Doctrine former FCC Commissioner Henry Rivera to the FCC Transition Team. Rivera's law firm includes former FCC Chairman Kevin Martin who authored the draft regulations dated 1/24/08 which, if enacted by the full FCC, would require "localism".

Specifically, the Martin draft regs. would require "permanent advisory boards comprised of local officials and other community leaders to advise (station managers) of local needs and issues", in effect, a permanent complaint department. Advertisers were specifically excluded from serving on these "advisory boards".

Community activist groups are already organizing to enforce these regulations. For example, the National Asian-Pacific Legal Consortium has a "fill-in the blanks" FCC complaint form on their website today.

The model here is the 1978 Community Redevelopment Act (CRA http://www.city-journal.org/html/10_1_the_trillion_dollar.html) which set up a similar complaint process in mortgage lending which allowed ACORN (http://www.discoverthenetworks.org/groupProfile.asp?grpid=6968) to intimidate lenders to give mortgages to the "undeserved". Funding for "community groups" was included in the Stimulus Bill, presumably including groups such as NAPLC in order to subsidize members to serve on the radio station "permanent advisory boards".

These draft FCC regs, in some version, will be back before the (Obama majority) FCC as early as this summer for enactment and enforcement.

While the wider aim is to assert tighter government control over all radio programming, the immediate target here is conservative talk radio. The "progressive" tilt at publicly funded NPR, or the Big Business ownership of liberal leaning network news does not bother Obama. He knows that the executives at GE and NBC Universal will self censor to avoid criticism. In a recent meeting, GE CEO Jeff Immelt and NBC Universal President Jeff Zucker met to discuss how to limit criticism of Obama on MSNBC.

But free speech advocates not affiliated with conservative talk radio are beginning to speak up. The Society for Professional Journalism opposes the "Fairness Doctrine" and any government mandate on "fairness" as just another form of censorship by the government.

The time for YOU to act is now--the need is urgent."

A coalition is forming to fight for freedom of the airwaves and real diversity of opinion. Find out how to get involved at www.unfairair.org. Do it now.

I could haul it over to Barnett Street tonight and quick like a bunny set it off.Somebody suggested I bury it in my back yard, but I am not a litter bug.An old buddy of mine lives in Florence, he once said he can use it to fill in a low spot on his land.I could bust it up into little bitty pieces with my sledge hammer and mix it in with the garbage bags and let the garbage truck haul it to the city dump.Way I see it, that's what city dumps are for.

The "attack is Real"?? Only in your Fox-News-contaminated-thinking, Donkey Doo. Get up to date on a few things.

1. A Federal Court UPHELD THE REPEAL of the Fairness Doctrine back in 1989.

http://query.nytimes.com/gst/fullpage.html?res=950DE7D9143EF932A25751C0A96F948260

2. Obama has already voiced his DISAPPROVAL of re-instating the Fairness Doctrine.

3. However, it IS TRUE that Representatives Hinchey and Slaughter have introduced a bill to bring back the Fairness Doctrine on more than one occasion, but the bills have DIED IN COMMITTEE.

Calm down, have a rest, and try aroma therapy, a colon cleanse....or

The list of 100 Obama gaffes in this New York Post piece compiled by their crackerjack staff is actually pretty frightening. The foreign policy goofs are especially troubling since, added together, they reveal an administration drifting toward disaster in several areas.

All presidents make mistakes. That's because they are human and pratfalls are a part of the job.

But the number and seriousness of Obama errors in judgment, not to mention misstatements, lies, exaggerations, and a general inability to avoid flip flopping on a daily basis - all point to a shocking incompetence.

I can't say there has been any improvement from day 1 to 100. Either Obama's" learning curve" has little or no arc to it or he has actually regressed. About the only thing you can say is that he can still do whatever he wants - even if he mucks things up - because of his still enormous personal popularity and the fact that his huge Democratic majorities in Congress allow his agenda to pass with ease.

Here are a few of the Post's Obama goofs:

2. "There is no doubt that we've been living beyond our means and we're going to have to make some adjustments." -- Obama during the campaign.

3. This year's budget deficit: $1.5 trillion.

4. Asks his Cabinet to cut costs in their departments by $100 million -- a whopping .0027%!

30. Timothy Geithner nomination as Secretary of Treasury was almost torpedoed when it was discovered he had failed to pay $34,000 in Social Security and Medicare taxes. He also employed an illegal immigrant as a housekeeper. He was confirmed anyway.

31. . . . Not so lucky, Annette Nazareth, who was nominated for Deputy Treasury Secretary. She withdrew her name for undisclosed "personal reasons" after a monthlong probe into her taxes . . .

32. . . . or Caroline Atkinson, who withdrew as nominee for Undersecretary of International Affairs in Treasury Department, with a source blaming the long vetting process. Geithner still has a skeleton crew at Treasury, with no one qualified -- or willing -- to take jobs there.

Read all 100. I'll bet there are some that you didn't know about.

Obama campaign confronts WGN radio

DENVER -- Sen. Barack Obama's campaign organized its supporters Wednesday night to confront Tribune-owned WGN-AM in Chicago for having a critic of the Illinois Democrat on its air.

"WGN radio is giving right-wing hatchet man Stanley Kurtz a forum to air his baseless, fear-mongering terrorist smears," Obama's campaign wrote in an e-mail to supporters. "He's currently scheduled to spend a solid two-hour block from 9:00 to 11:00 p.m. pushing lies, distortions, and manipulations about Barack and University of Illinois professor William Ayers."

Kurtz, a conservative writer, recently wrote an article for the National Review that looked at Obama's ties to Ayers, a former 1960s radical who later emerged as a school reform advocate in Chicago.

The magazine had been blocked in its initial attempts to obtain records from the University of Illinois at Chicago regarding a school reform initiative called the Chicago Annenberg Challenge, which Obama chaired and Ayers co-founded.

Obama critics were quick to suggest that political clout could be involved in seeking to protect Obama from embarrassment. The school later reserved its position and made the records available Tuesday.

On Wednesday evening, Obama's campaign urged supporters to call the radio station to complain.

"Tell WGN that by providing Kurtz with airtime, they are legitimizing baseless attacks from a smear-merchant and lowering the standards of political discourse," the note said.

"It is absolutely unacceptable that WGN would give a slimy character assassin like Kurtz time for his divisive, destructive ranting on our public airwaves," the note continued. "At the very least, they should offer sane, honest rebuttal to every one of Kurtz's lies."

Zack Christenson, executive producer of "Extension 720 with Milt Rosenburg," said the response was strong.

"I would say this is the biggest response we've ever got from a campaign or a candidate," he said. "This is really unprecedented with the show, the way that people are flooding the calls and our email boxes."

Christenson said the Obama campaign was asked to have someone appear on the show and declined the request.

"He got into the files just yesterday, so we wanted to have him on to find out what he found. And, if at all possible, we wanted to get the Obama campaign, to get their side of the story," Christenson said. "That's why the uproar is kind of amazing, because we wanted the Obama campaign's take as well."

The show's producer said the calls dropped off after the show's first hour. He did not have a count of calls, but said it was "non-stop."

Obama's campaign has launched similar offensives against stations that have run campaign ads that it did not like.

Ru$h is the brown streak of crap in the underwear of america.

What an embarrassment that people uphold this dropout, drug addled man who has a need for Viagra when he visits foreign countries without his wife. His talks of riots and hatred of people is what IS WRONG with america. His rants are nothing but a acid bath of hatred and negativity.

Mike where were you when they coined the Names :
* Spanish Swine Flu
* Hong Kong Flu
* Shanghai Flu
All based on the simple fact of that's where these Flues were detected first.

MWB are You Rewriting History and trying to imply that this new Swine-Avian-Human Flu does not exist ?

As you all know I'm incapable of original thought since the head injury I sustained as a child. Consequently I spend all of my time plagarizing off topic posts using the cut and paste articles provided to me by the John Birch Society since the election of that negro as President.
As I am unemployed I have lots of free time I pledge to continue to do so for the next four years of his Presidency.

Oh sure I've ruined and will continue to ruin the shortwave newsgroup for all of you who merely desired to enjoy your radio hobby and selfishly believe this newsgroup is for shortwave radio information. But I will continue to post my inane off topic political rants because I must. My psychiatrist calls it therapeutic, I call it my DUTY!

As I canvass the neighborhoods of Richardson and the greater Dallas area, screaming and waving my latest top secret plan to save the United States of America I don't need to hear the usual taunts - "take your medication!" "Get lost you ignorant racist", "wasn't that you on the poster warning about the results of incest?" "how do you squueze that fat ass and beer belly into your klan robe? You look like a moving figure 8!" "your brown pants go great with your yellow teeth!"it's called HEAD LICE - look into it!",

On and on it goes but I will not stop. Like my mentor at the local Klavern told me last night - they are just jealous of us because we have the inside scoop on the way things REALLY work in the world. And it's our Divinely appointed duty to educate the world about the grand conspiracy to enslave us all.

On a personal note; just to let you all know that I am indeed human and not some kind of mythical super hero here is a pic of me hard at work educating a youngster in one of my favorite groups - Kiddies Killing Kommunisn. http://www.bobbyworks.com/images/fat%20man%20at%20computer.jpg

The local clinic got one back in the 60s and it would mess up TV all over town(small town). I didnt know what was causing it until I was in the clinic one day and the TV in there was doing just like the one at home, the difference was I could here a relay clicking in time with the appearance of the interference. I later found that the doctor running the clinic had complained to the city who owned the clinic that he didnt have any modern equipment(he wanted an X-ray machine) the diathermy machine was what they bought for the clinic. It was rumored that every time he waited on a patient he would key it a few times.

We Just Went.

Heh, that didn't take long.Then I jumped back in my van, turned the lights on.Up the hill and around the curve past the Moulden Supply place, past the Furtuniture Land store, (it used to be a K-Mart store) and hang a right and past the Beauty Warehouse store.(it used to be a Toys R Us store) I wonder if that Beauty Warehouse store sells genuine glass beads? I have plenty of room in my van now for that Goodwill store couch I am going to buy tomorrow.

Hey, Telemundoh!

We want a new conspiracy!

Here are some topics for you: tracking people via fluoride toothpaste, the evil behind aglets, the decline and fall of Western civilization due to the overwhelming spread of coffee bars, Girl Scouts - to help little old ladies or something far more sinister?. Choose a topic and we look forward to hearing about it from you!

Spoken like the retard you are.

And by the way dumb ass this -- is a signature termination that most news readers use to determine the body from the sig so stop using it to note quoted content you punctuation idiot. And yes I noted the space between them.

The clown act is what you how to do and not much else. It wasn't very entertaining to begin with and is pretty old now.

Here you go:

John Barnard thinks he an intelligent and clever person but there is this group of people on Usenet that tell him otherwise. Every time John posts he is mocked and he starts to doubt himself. Things start going wrong in his life offline so he suspects these same people are following him around screwing things up when he is looking the other way.

Truth is John is a screwup. The end.

Now go drink your Kook-aid and for the last time stop sucking your thumb.

Mr. Lare's lights are on but nobody's home - his usual condition.

He's likely passed out on his bathroom floor again. He will come to about 3:00 a.m., stagger to his computer and in a drunken stupor vent his misdirected rage (over his miserably failed life) about someone or something.

A very sad case indeed.

The one I got about 25 years ago, I felt ok for about 1 week or so, then was just miserable for about 10 days. Last one, about maybe 10, was even worse, chills, sweats, and I just was wanting to sleep through it, but I couldn't, even loaded up on Nyquil, or even Actifed, which just about puts me into a coma. I've had the flu a couple times since, and none of them approached being as bad as the three times I got a shot, so I pass on them.

If acting like you is being "grown up", I hope I never get there. You seem to act more like a tired out 3 year old than an adult.

Last time I had it was in January, and I had the chills on and off for two days, and other than that, it was like any normal cold. Not a huge deal, but I really hate those chills.

Well, I'm still going to pass on the shot.

Google celebrates Samuel F. B. Morse's birthday today by running a new look for its main page at google.com. I'm not sure if that applies to all countries, though.

Morse was born on April 27, 1791 in Charlestown, Massachusetts.

“Captured Flu Carrier Describes Horrors of Spreading Disease”

By Miguel DeLaques
Gazette Staff Reporter
April 27, 2009

REYNOSA, Mexico -- Pablo Fertal, 27, a migrant farm worker since age 14, was picked up and detained recently by officials of the local Authoritie de Medical Nationale after he was reported by a hotel proprietor as a probable carrier of the swine flu that is spreading from Mexico City into the U.S. and Canada. As he receives treatment under police guard at a local clinic, he spoke of his experiences that in all likelihood led to his becoming a contagious carrier of the sometimes deadly disease. His broken English has been partially edited for clarity in this transcribed interview.

“Hola my name es Pablo and I no spek the englas so well so please excuse please. I was work in beeg corn field and pig farm last month when I thng I caut dees flu from de pigs. I am no married you see so I was as you say alway horny. Always. I look for the girls and these one time I met Maria in town and she tol me she can set me up with nice young senorita ver clean. So I give her 17 pesos for hotel and tequila and she took me to the room and tol me wait for senorita. I tok a few drinks from bottle and next thing I know I am in bed full of the piss and shit meself and these hog, these pig is in the bed also and my dick es all sore and red wih the puss. Me head hurt bad but I chase the pig out of the bed and try to get up but fall back and hit head on side and not feel so good too. Later, a police come in and arrest me for fucking the pig he says, and take me away still no clothes on and pig shit all over me body. In the station I am told I have a bad disease and have to stay until I am cured and I will be fined for the medicine and other things. The doctor tol me the pig which dey kill have the swine flu and gave to me when I have the sex with eet. Which I say me no remember but they say I was registerer at the hotel and people call police to stop the squealing and noise. So I am here but cant go until me blood no more hav the hog germs doctor say. The police say to me many men en Mexico are long time screw the pigs when no can buy the senoritias and this is spread the flu all over. My wee-wee now have three holes for the peeing and the blood still coming out. Thas all. Gracias. Okay. Don put thees in the

"Perverto" Clearly you post proves that you live up to your screen name. ~ RHF
But your post does illustrate the very real fact that Illegal Mexican Alien Invaders that are Working in US Food Processing Plants could be a Prime Source for Spreading the Mexican Swine Flu via Contaminated Fruits, Vegetables, Meats throughout the USA to Americans.
Conspiracy Theory : China {PRC} Bio-Engineered the so-called Mexican Swine Flu which is really a Swine-Avian-Human "Bio-Engineered" Virus and released it in Mexico as a Surrogate Insertion Point to Attack the USA using the Millions of Illegal Mexican Alien Invaders that cross the US Border each Year.

So the idea of a gay fascist seems ridiculous. Yet when the British National Party - our own home-grown Holocaust-denying bigots - announced it was fielding an openly gay candidate in the European elections this June, dedicated followers of fascism didn't blink. The twisted truth is that gay men have been at the heart of every major fascist movement that ever was - including the gay-gassing, homo-cidal Third Reich. With the exception of Jean-Marie Le Pen, all the most high-profile fascists in Europe in the past thirty years have been gay. It's time to admit something. Fascism isn't something that happens out there, a nasty habit acquired by the straight boys. It is - in part, at least - a gay thing, and it's time for non-fascist gay people to wake up and face the marching music.

People are so worried because over 100 have died in Mexico City. Think about this:

There are literally over 1,000,000 homeless in Mexico City, thousands to hundreds of thousands of whom live underground (literally). That's a lot of homeless. There are likely twice to thrice as many that are poor, and can't afford to go to a doctor or hospital. Most of those that have died likely couldn't afford treatment, and likely waited until it was far too late to seek treatment.

There are many, many homeless Americans in America, and many Americans can not afford insurance.There are some people in America who live underground,,, literally, in New York City.
A few years ago I watched a program on tv about that.

In 1992, I visited Mexico for five days when I was on vacation.Mexico is third World because that is Mexico is Mexico is Mexico and there isn't anything in the World that will ever change that either.

Wow, well that's just ridiculous.

Bush inherited peace, prosperity, and a well-run government until he ran the country into the ground. Obama is dealing with the Bush mess. Of course you can't compare the popularity of an idiot like Bush who was coasting on Clinton's good governance against Obama's huge disadvantage of war, shattered government, and incompetence inherited from Bush. Duh.

I sure laugh a lot for being bitter. Maybe you don't understand what it means. =3Fbaby cakes=3F?

No new kooktardery? You disappoint me, Telemundoh!! You need to read some more "The sky is falling/going to fall stuff, so you can find a new outlet for your kooktardism when you finally abandon the Obama BC non-story. No rush, as you seem to be a true believer.

I'm guessing fluoridation, the Clintons, or maybe illegal aliens would be probable kooktardic subjects for you to switch to.

Or maybe you'll tell us what you like dislike about one of your radios, and show there is some tiny bit of sanity remaining. You do that, and I'll do the same. You can do it Telemundoh, I know you can. Let go of your anger!!

Oh really? If that totally unsubstantiated claim were true (and it's not), then how is it that Il Duche, Benito Mussolini, the founder and most powerful Fascist leader in history, was famously heterosexual, having not only wives and children, but mistresses and numerous promiscuous sexual encounters with female "groupies".

As usual, the only thing that's "twisted" is you. You're a dishonorable LIAR, propagandist, and fraud.
Nobody with half a brain would take you seriously after trying to pass such ignorant tripe as factual.

Obamao, you ignorant slut. :P

From wikipedia:
Personal life

Mussolini was first married to Ida Dalser in Trento in 1914.[60] The couple had a son one year later and named him Benito Albino Mussolini.
In December 1915, Mussolini married Rachele Guidi, his mistress since 1910, and with his following political ascendency the information about his first marriage was suppressed and both, his first wife and son were later persecuted.[60] With Rachele, Mussolini had two daughters, Edda (1910-1995) and Anna Maria (Forlì, Villa Carpena, 3 September 1929 - Rome, 25 April 1968), married in Ravenna on June 11, 1960 to Nando Pucci Negri, and three sons Vittorio (1916-1997), Bruno (1918-1941), and Romano (1927-2006). Mussolini had a number of mistresses among them Margherita Sarfatti and his final companion, Clara Petacci. Further Mussolini had innumerable brief sexual encounters with adoring female supporters as reported by his biographer Nicholas Farrell. [61]

Almost as ridiculous as "liberal Fascist". Fascism is the right-wing opposite of Communism, you ignorant slut. You can't have a liberal Fascist; that's impossible by definition.

But then, if you knew anything you wouldn't be spewing such copious volumes of utter sewage on the NG.

Hey, we have a gay fish on the line. Hello your gayness. From the Gay Capital of the Swine World no less - bwaHAHAHAHAHA!

Gay's are highly attracted to the Fascist personality. Like swine hormones to a sow. It stands to reason why Fascist leaders are often surrounded by gays.
Apparently this one is too busy getting his asshole reamed that "it" gave up reading books long ago.

It used to be said that self-preservation is the first law of nature. But much of what has been happening in recent times in the United States, and in Western civilization in general, suggests that survival is taking a back seat to the shibboleths of political correctness.

We have already turned loose dozens of captured terrorists, who have resumed their terrorism. Why? Because they have been given "rights" that exist neither in our laws nor under international law.

These are not criminals in our society, entitled to the protection of the Constitution of the United States. They are not prisoners of war entitled to the protection of the Geneva Convention.

There was a time when people who violated the rules of war were not entitled to turn around and claim the protection of those rules. German soldiers who put on U.S. military uniforms, in order to infiltrate American lines during the Battle of the Bulge, were simply lined up against a wall and shot.

Nobody even thought that this was a violation of the Geneva Convention. American authorities filmed the mass executions. Nobody dreamed up fictitious "rights" for these enemy combatants who had violated the rules of war. Nobody thought we had to prove that we were nicer than the Nazis by bending over backward.

Bending over backward is a very bad position from which to try to defend yourself. Nobody in those days confused bending over backward with "the rule of law," as Barack Obama did recently. Bending over backward is the antithesis of the rule of law. It is depriving the people of the protection of their laws, in order to pander to mushy notions among the elite.

Even under the Geneva Convention, enemy soldiers have no right to be turned loose before the war is over. Terrorists-- "militants" or "insurgents" for those of you who are squeamish-- have declared open-ended war against America. It is open-ended in time and open-ended in methods, including beheadings of innocent civilians.

President Obama can ban the phrase "war on terror" but he cannot ban the terrorists' war on us. That war continues, so there is no reason to turn terrorists loose before it ends. They chose to make it that kind of war. We don't need to risk American lives to prove that we are nicer than they are.

The great Supreme Court justice Oliver Wendell Holmes said that law is not some "brooding omnipresence in the sky." It is a set of explicit rules by which human beings structure their lives and their relationships with one another.

Those who choose to live outside those laws, whether terrorists or pirates, can be-- and have been-- shot on sight. Squeamishness is neither law nor morality. And moral exhibitionism is beneath contempt, when it sacrifices the safety of those who live within the law for the sake of self-satisfied preening, whether in editorial offices or in the White House.

As if it is not enough to turn cutthroats loose to cut throats again, we are now contemplating legal action against Americans who wrung information about international terrorist operations out of captured terrorists.

Does nobody think ahead to what this will mean-- for many years to come-- if people trying protect this country from terrorists have to worry about being put behind bars themselves? Do we need to have American intelligence agencies tip-toeing through the tulips when they deal with terrorists?

In his visit to CIA headquarters, President Obama pledged his support to the people working there and said that there would be no prosecutions of CIA agents for prior actions. Then he welshed on that in a matter of hours by leaving the door open for such prosecutions, which the left has been clamoring for, both inside and outside of Congress.

Repercussions extend far beyond issues of the day. It is bad enough that we have a glib and sophomoric narcissist in the White House. What is worse is that whole nations that rely on the United States for their security see how easily our president welshes on his commitments. So do other nations, including those with murderous intentions toward us, our children and grandchildren.

Your Democratic Scandal Scorecard

We are already used to revelations of Democratic lawmakers saying one thing and doing another, and in some cases, violating the law with impunity. But for a congressional majority, and later, a president and administration that ran against a “culture of corruption,” the breadth, depth, and variety of recent and ongoing Democratic scandals is pretty eye-opening.

SEN. CHRIS DODD (D., CONN.): Dodd is most notably and recently in trouble for the provision of the stimulus bill that ensured that already-existing contracts for bonuses at companies receiving federal bailout money would be honored. In an interview with CNN, he initially denied any role in the provision.

As chair of the Senate Banking Committee, Dodd tried to put together federal aid for the then-troubled mortgage lender Countrywide Financial. Dodd’s homes in Connecticut and Washington, D.C., were refinanced to below-market rates under the “Friends of Angelo” program (meaning he was a friend of then-CEO Angelo Mozilo). He did not disclose the refinance in the six financial-disclosure statements he’s filed since then and has failed to keep promises to release more information about them. He later said he knew he was part of the company’s “VIP” program, but he didn’t know being a part of the VIP program meant he would receive favorable mortgage terms. (Really.) Those noted anti-Democrat partisans on the New York Times editorial board have declared “his excuses are wearing ridiculously thin.”

NRO and the Los Angeles Times have reported that Dodd’s financial bailout legislation was “exactly what Bank of America and Countrywide wanted.”

In Dodd’s Senate ethics filings, he has repeatedly listed the value of his “cottage” in Ireland as between $100,001 and $250,000. Others have assessed the value of the property at $1 million or more. He bought it with a Missouri businessman who was friends with a felon convicted of insider trading. Dodd helped secure the felon a pardon from President Clinton, and later bought his partner’s two-thirds share of the property for $127,000.

In summer of 2008, when he was responsible for oversight of Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac, Dodd argued that to “suggest they are in major trouble is not accurate.” Fannie and Freddie employees donated $133,900 to Dodd since 1989, more to him than to any other lawmaker.

REP. JACK MURTHA (D., PA.): Federal agents are examining how nearly $250 million in defense appropriations were steered to clients of KSA Consulting, which employed Murtha’s brother Robert, and the PMA Group, founded by a former Murtha aide. The clients then contributed $775,000 to Murtha in the last election cycle. The lawmaker is also under scrutiny for steering federal earmarks to John Murtha Airport.

REP. CHARLIE RANGEL (D., N.Y.): He is being “investigated by the House Ethics Committee in at least four areas, including his reported failure to properly report income taxes on a Caribbean villa in the Dominican Republic; use of four, rent-controlled apartments in Harlem; questions about an offshore firm asking Rangel for special tax exemptions; and whether Rangel improperly used House stationery to solicit donations for a school of public affairs named after him at City College of New York,” Fox News summarizes.

GOV. BILL RICHARDSON (D., N.M.): His nomination as commerce secretary was “derailed by a federal grand jury investigating whether one of his campaign donors won state contracts because of pressure from the governor’s office. The probe is moving along aggressively, sources close to the investigation said, and it is unclear whether Richardson could be indicted or what may become of his top aides, some of whom have been questioned,” the Washington Post reported.

SEN. DIANNE FEINSTEIN (D., CALIF.): Introduced legislation to steer $25 billion to the FDIC, days after before CB Richard Ellis Group, a commercial real-estate firm headed by her husband, Richard Blum, won the competitive bidding for a contract to sell foreclosed properties that the FDIC had inherited from failed banks. As the Washington Times noted, Feinstein is not a member of the Senate Committee on Banking, Housing and Urban Affairs, which has jurisdiction over the FDIC; and the agency is supposed to operate from money it raises from bank-paid insurance payments — not direct federal dollars. (UPDATE: The legislation was introduced before the contract was awarded to CB Richard Ellis Group. See Feinstein office response below.)

REP. JIM MORAN (D., VA.) and REP. PETER VISCLOSKY (D., IND.): Along with Murtha, these two congressmen are under scrutiny for their ties to PMA Group, a lobbying firm that steered millions of dollars in donations to their political committees from its lobbyists and earmark-seeking clients.

REP. JESSE JACKSON (D., ILL.): The Chicago Sun-Times reports that two allies of Jackson told former Gov. Rod Blagojevich’s camp that the congressman would raise up to $5 million in campaign cash for the ex-governor if he was appointed to President Obama’s U.S. Senate seat. Jackson is under investigation by the House Office of Congressional Ethics.

REP. JANE HARMAN (D., CALIF.): This lawmaker can allegedly be heard on an NSA wiretap offering to help seek reduced charges for two pro-Israel lobbyists suspected of espionage in exchange for help from a suspected Israeli agent in lobbying House Speaker Nancy Pelosi to give Harman a key chairmanship.

STEVE RATTNER: President Obama's "Car Czar" was one of the executives involved with payments under scrutiny in a probe of an alleged kickback scheme at New York state's pension fund, according to a person familiar with the matter, the Wall Street Journal reports.

In addition, since the beginning of the year, the House Office of Congressional Ethics has opened 10 preliminary investigations and six of them have moved to the "second phase review" stage. The identities of the lawmakers or staff under investigation are not known, other than Jesse Jackson Jr.

Then there is the separate category for scandals that have come and gone, and not been considered sufficient to impede cabinet nominees from performing their duties — the unpaid taxes of Secretary of the Treasury Tim Geithner, Secretary of Health and Human Services nominee Kathleen Sebelius, U.S. Trade Representative Ron Kirk, and Labor Secretary Hilda Solis, who overcame questions about $6,400 in tax liens against her husband's business. Tom Daschle and Nancy Killefer withdrew their nominations after revelations of unpaid taxes.

And this list is just the folks currently in office. Among those who have left office are former Gov. Rod Blagojevich (D., Ill.), former Detroit mayor Kwame Kilpatrick; and former Rep. William "The Freezer" Jefferson (D., La.).

And also file away the news that the National Enquirer, the first to break the news of John Edwards's affair with a former campaign staffer, reports that a federal grand jury is examining allegations he paid her hush money with campaign funds.

But other than that, they're "draining the swamp" and beating back the "culture of corruption," as promised . ..

UPDATE: Feinstein's office strenuously objects to the linked Times article.

The Washington Times on Tuesday published a story by Chuck Neubauer that aimed inaccurate, untrue and unfair suggestions of impropriety at Sen. Dianne Feinstein, California Democrat, and her husband, Richard Blum ("Senate husband's firm cashes in on crisis," Page 1). This hit piece distorted the truth in an attempt to cast an ethical cloud over legislation that was designed to help struggling homeowners avoid foreclosure.

Mr. Neubauer twisted some facts - and ignored others - to cast shadows of controversy. It is disappointing that The Times saw fit to print such innuendo, but it's never too late for a fact check.

Mr. Neubauer framed his story by asserting that the senator's foreclosure-prevention bill was unusual because she "isn't a member of the Senate Committee on Banking, Housing and Urban Affairs with jurisdiction over the FDIC." This is completely and indisputably false. A simple examination of the senator's legislative record reveals that she often pursues legislation that falls outside the scope of her committee assignments.

In the last session of Congress alone, she introduced: a bill that established national licensing standards for the mortgage industry, although she is not on the Banking, Housing and Urban Affairs Committee; a bill that closed the Enron loophole, although she is not on the Agriculture Committee; a bill that banned harmful phthalates from children's toys, although she is not a member of the Commerce Committee; a bill to raise fuel efficiency of America's fleet of vehicles by 10 miles per gallon over 10 years, although she is not a member of the Commerce Committee; a bill to renew trade sanctions against the Burmese junta, although she is not a member of the Finance Committee; and a bill to reduce the tariff on imported ethanol, although she is not a member of the Finance Committee.

So, there is nothing unusual about her bill to provide $25 billion in foreclosure relief to struggling homeowners. Senators commonly pursue bills that are outside the jurisdiction of their committees, according to researchers at the Library of Congress.

The story also insinuates that there is a correlation between the date on which Mrs. Feinstein wrote a letter in support of Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. Chairman Sheila C. Bair's foreclosure-prevention efforts and the date on which a competitively bid contract was awarded by FDIC career staff to CB Richard Ellis Group, where Mr. Blum is non-executive chairman. But there is a more logical reason why she sent the letter Oct. 30.

That day, the Los Angeles Times ran a front-page story about Mrs. Bair's proposal, describing it as a plan that could "help millions of families stave off foreclosure." I presented this article to the senator, who is very concerned with the issue because California has the highest number of foreclosures in the nation, with 837,665 filings in 2008 alone. After reading it, she sent the letter. Coincidentally, an L.A. Times editorial the next day endorsed Mrs. Bair's plan, calling it a "promising" way to "stave off more foreclosures by offering federal guarantees to lenders that refinance defaulting mortgages."

At the time, neither Mrs. Feinstein nor her husband had any awareness of CB Richard Ellis' bid for an FDIC contract to advise the agency on the sales of foreclosed properties. Her support of the Bair proposal was based solely on the urgent need to stem foreclosures. I explained the correlation between the newspaper story and the legislation to Mr. Neubauer, but his story downplays the significance. The story also fails to mention that variations of this proposal passed the Senate by unanimous voice vote.

The truth is that Mrs. Feinstein was not aware of the CB Richard Ellis contract until Mr. Neubauer called me Jan. 21 and I brought it to her attention. There is no conflict of interest - and no connection - between the senator's foreclosure-relief bill and CB Richard Ellis' winning a competitively bid contract, which was awarded - unbeknownst to her - by nonpolitical career staff.

Additionally, a bill to prevent foreclosures would not be particularly helpful to a company that was bidding for a contract to sell foreclosed properties.

In any case, President Obama issued an executive order to allocate $75 billion in federal funds for a foreclosure-relief program similar to the Bair plan, rendering Mrs. Feinstein's legislation unnecessary.

Mr. Neubauer's story also uses a selective description of the FDIC contract terms in order to make it seem as if CB Richard Ellis received a unique and lucrative deal. But the terms of its contract are similar to those that any other firm could have won in the nine-month-long competitive bidding process.

There is no sweetheart deal, there is no conflict of interest, and there is no story.

Mrs. Feinstein has the highest ethical standards and complies with all requirements of the Ethics Committee. Her legislative agenda is dictated by what she believes is best for the people of the United States and the people of California. Period. Any suggestion to the contrary is inaccurate, untrue and unfair.

BULL SHEIT - more endless ignorant Liberal fascist propaganda LIES!!!!

Words Versus Realities [OR Liberal Fascist Propaganda Lies Versus Truth]

"Much as I hate to be the bearer of bad news, I must report the shocking facts: Medical care is medical care. Nothing more and nothing less.

This may not seem like a breakthrough on the frontiers of knowledge.
But it completely contradicts what is being said by many of those who are urging "universal health care" because so many Americans lack health insurance.

Insurance is not medical care. Indeed, health care is not the same as medical care. Countries with universal health care do not have more or better medical care.

The bottom line is medical care. But the rhetoric and the talking points are about insurance. Many people who could afford health insurance do not choose to have it because they know that medical care will be available at the nearest emergency room, whether they have insurance or not.

This is especially true for young people, who do not anticipate long-term medical problems and who can always get a broken leg or an allergy attack taken care of at an emergency room -- and spend their money on a more upscale lifestyle.

This may not be a wise decision but it is their decision, and there is no reason why other people should lose the right to make decisions for themselves because some people make questionable decisions.

If you don't think government bureaucrats can make questionable decisions, then you haven't dealt with many government bureaucrats.

It is one thing to deal with bureaucrats when you are at the Department of Motor Vehicles and in good health. It is something else when you have to deal with bureaucrats when you are lying on a gurney and bleeding or are doubled over in pain on a hospital bed.

People who believe in "universal health care" show remarkably little interest -- usually none -- in finding out what that phrase turns out to mean in practice, in those countries where it already exists, such as Britain, Sweden or Canada.

For one thing, "universal health care" in these countries means months of waiting for surgery that American get in a matter of weeks or even days.

In these and other countries, it means having only a fraction as many MRIs and other high-tech medical devices available per person as in the United States.

In Sweden, it means not only having bureaucrats deciding what medicines the government will and will not pay for, but even preventing you from buying the more expensive medicine for yourself with your own money. That would violate the "equality" that is the magic mantra.

Those who think in terms of talking points, instead of trying to understand realities, make much of the fact that some countries with government-controlled medical care have longer life expectancies than that in the United States.

[ PAY ATTENTION Useful Idiots! ***]

That is where the difference between health care and medical care comes in. Medical care is what doctors can do for you. Health care includes what you do for yourself -- such as diet, exercise and lifestyle.

If a doctor arrives on the scene to find you wiped out by a drug overdose or shot through the heart by some of your rougher companions, there may not be much that he can do except sign the death certificate.

Even for things that take longer to do you in -- obesity, alcohol, cholesterol, tobacco -- doctors can tell you what to do or not do, but whether you follow their advice or not is what determines the outcome.

Americans tend to be more obese, consume more drugs and have more homicides. None of that is going to change with "universal health care" because it isn't health care. It is medical care.

[ PAY ATTENTION Useful Idiots! ***]

When it comes to things where medical care itself makes the biggest difference -- cancer survival rates, for example -- Americans do much better than people in most other countries.

No one who compares medical care in this country with medical care in other countries is likely to want to switch. But those who cannot be bothered with the facts may help destroy the best medical care in the world by falling for political rhetoric.

"Healthcare: We don’t yet know what combination of mandates, subsidies, government-supplied insurance, and controls will arise. But we do know that the cornerstone of the cost containment Obama seeks will be decisions about what gets covered by the insurance that the government will be guaranteeing, regulating, and demanding. This means rationing and a potentially fatal blow to one of the last markets where expensive and experimental new treatments can be developed and, if found worthwhile, thrive.

"Given how Obama has shown such a scrupulous sense of pipers and their right to call the tune in the financial and automotive markets, he is apt to be more explicit than past politicians in insisting that any behavior by companies or individuals that costs the public money must be stringently controlled. That means your health will no longer be your own business but Barack Obama’s.

FDR, Obama and Bloodletting

How long will it take for America to wake up and realize Keynesian economics (government-induced stimulation of the economy) doesn't work?

First the bad news: Judging by past history, the restoration of common sense in government could take as long as 2400 years.

That's how long it took medical science to abolish bloodletting, an intended cure for infectious diseases, which was first practiced in about the fifth century BC and persisted until the mid-1800s.

The theory was that diseases were caused by an imbalance in the "humors" (bodily fluids), but the effects were not beneficial. Not only did the lancet introduce infectious germs but the loss of blood weakened the patient, often leading to death. Yet doctors didn't base their methods on results.

Human behavior is flawed. Our thinking is easily manipulated by the expectations of perceived authorities.

Even though millions of people witnessed the results of bloodletting, not enough noticed the lack of efficacy to bring about its abolition. I call this blindness the "respect effect." Those who doubted the efficacy of bloodletting would never have dared say so because they would have been criticizing an untouchable group.

Europe and most of Asia had gone through a long feudal period where society was divided into the rich landlords and the serfs, their de facto slaves. The latter had no right to contest the wisdom of the former.

Worse, most of the doctors had had formal training, often at a respected university and were thus seen as "educated." The scientific method, though articulated in the fifth century, was not commonly used in medicine. Thus the practice persisted until recent times. In the novel Fathers and Sons, for example, set in the mid-1800s, Turgenev mentions a doctor whose kitbag contains lances.

Apparently, medical training for physicians consisted simply of passing on the "wisdom" of the older professors and doctors to the students, who were not supposed to question them. Thus, a dangerous superstition gripped academe, while largely sparing the commoners.

Indeed, in those 2400 odd years during which doctors practicing bloodletting failed to cure their patients, while enjoying the full prestige of professional legitimacy, the commoners, who couldn't afford doctors, discovered, thanks to the mother of invention, countless herbal and home cures for all sorts of human and animal illnesses, cures that were infinitely more effective precisely because they had been proven, through trial and error, to work and because the intelligentsia weren't there to interfere.

Thus, for millenia “doctors” were overpaid quacks while the common man was far advanced compared to such practitioners.

It wasn't until the 19th century that the intellectual elites discovered, using the common man's time-tested techniques, that the unfounded assumptions about bloodletting were false.

Now what I have said about medical science applies in kind to economic science.

The principle of supply and demand had always been widely accepted by all social classes, whether or not they could articulate it. After all, the free-market system gave positive results, particularly once the industrial revolution was in place.

No one could deny it.

But a new superstition was about to grip academe.

In the 19th century, as physicians were abandoning bloodletting, a handful of intellectuals reverted to the old elitist ways, founding a new system based on nothing but unproven assumptions. Though couched in abstruse and high sounding prose, Das Kapital is nothing but a collection of random, loosely connected observations and theories. Vladimir Lenin foisted this so-called system on his country and after almost 70 years, his successors turned in the final results: abject failure.

By contrast, America turned in respectable test results, proving the efficacy of free market principles.

Conclusion: the more government, the worse the results. The less government, the better the results.

But before that, John Maynard Keynes had thrown his weight toward more government and had become the intellectual mentor of FDR, who implemented Keynesian economics. Keynes once suggested that if the government paid men to dig ditches and fill them back up again, that would stimulate the economy.

FDR adopted this idea of experimental government intervention, paying farmers to kill piglets in an effort to increase farm prices. It brought up meat prices but it didn't help people buy meat.

It is now recognized that FDR, far from "getting us out of the Depression," actually prolonged it<http://newsroom.ucla.edu/portal/ucla/FDR-s-Policies-Prolonged-Depression-5409.aspx> by about seven years.

Yet FDR was praised as a "genius" by the media and the intellectual elite.

Why?

For the same reason that physicians for years had resorted to bloodletting: the respect effect.

Academe never seriously questioned FDR's "genius." Having graduated from Harvard and Columbia, he was one of their own. Their writings reflect that misguided respect, which was passed on to today's Democrats and Obama, who has resumed economic bloodletting, calling it "stimulus." It will bleed our children and grandchildren. Yet regardless of the economic ills of interminable debt, the elite dutifully extol his "genius."

But here's the good news: Unlike FDR, Obama did not win by a landslide. Nor, judging by our coast-to-coast tea parties, does he enjoy anywhere near the popularity or trust that FDR commanded for four terms.

There are good reasons for this:

* In FDR's day, the Soviet experiment was just getting started. Today, the world's most visible socialist states have failed spectacularly.
* There was no significant conservative/libertarian movement in FDR's day. Today, such organizations flourish.
* Today, thanks in large part to the Internet, the hot issues of taxation and spending are spotlighted despite efforts to obfuscate.
* Sound economic theory supported by facts competes with socialist ideas in academe, as articulated by Friedrich Hayek, Ludwig von Mises, Milton Friedman, Thomas Sowell, etc.
* FDR supported national defense. Obama has all but ignored the military and apologizes to our enemies.

The honeymoon is over, and the scientific method, applied to Obamanomics, will melt the Keynesian fantasies like snow in a spring thaw.

Update: Clear Channel cuts 3%.
In a new round of layoffs, the company dismisses 590 employees. While an earlier round of cutbacks in January focused on salespeople, today's downsizing hits operations including engineers, traffic, accounting and programming departments. If you know of layoffs in your market, send names/titles to editor@insideradio.com all countries regardless of the color of their government are socialized society, the subtle different is the tax system. the stronger the infrastructure, the deeper socialized gov. Only a handful of country that has no tax or little tax are truly free society, people have to defend for themselves. If you go to a library, call 911, driving on a highway ... you use socialized services

When I worked at Delta Cotton Oil a dude used to say, I am hell when I am well, trouble is, I stay sick all the time.
Old Henry Hunter (he worked there too) always had a piece of copper wire he wore loosely around his right ankle.One time I asked him about that piece of copper wire around his ankle.He said it is to drain off electwicity.

About an hour ago, we got a little rain shower over here.I might try to bring doggy's Goodwill store couch in this evening/tonight.I don't want those democraps and libs in my neighborhood to see me bringing in that couch anyway.I know for a Fact they wouldn't bother to lend a hand.

Take for instance last Wednesday when I was getting my 1914 Ford Model T car onto my trailer.That democrat across the street, he came over here to watch, but did he bother to help me? Hell no he didn't! He only stood around with his arms folded over his chest as though he thought he was some kind of a supervisor or something.He broke my old Remington electric chainsaw too.

I want to put new spark plugs in my van.I have asked him twice about my spark plug socket I loaned him last year, (for my socket wrench) he still has my socket over there in the trunk of his car.He is one of those Obama spread the wealth ObamaButtKissers.

Well, the real deal polio vaccine that actually worked went into national distribution in either '53 or '54. If you had a vaccine in the 40s, it must have been the experimental stuff -- which, by the way, DIDN'T work. So, if you didn't get polio, it was because you weren't exposed...no thanks to that experimental stuff. Either that or you got your dates wrong and really got the vaccine in the early 50s.

You don't know what socialism is. Having a government for the benefit of the population is not socialism...which has more to do with who controls the means of production, ranging from agriculture to manufacturing and services.

When they start demanding 50% and more of your income it's not just community services, it becomes Government control, whether they control all your money or the businesses directly it's Socialism.

Wake up and smell the socialism.

You got to stop projecting Kookaburra. The kook'tard stuff is in your domain not mine.

The Kilntoon's will always a subject of ridicule.

I like my radios. If I didn't I would sell them to someone that would.
Sanity is something you know nothing about and yeah you do have anger issues.

It makes a difference if he was in the plane? The AF1 jumbo jet with the military escort plane was buzzing NYC at the obominators request for a photo operation.

The obominator has been sucking big time everyone of those 100 days.

*A tele-prompter note: Have the obomination thank himself again.

Hello John,
Just a quick note to see how the MW/SW DX'ing is going in South Africa? Is it Fall down there now? Still trying to get some of those transatlantic MW stations here in Hobe Sound, getting close, I think I heard a British station the other night, and of course the Saudi powerhouse at 1521 came in again. Any more adventures with your DX pals to the seaside yet again? Those are very interesting to read. Hope that you and yours are doing well and had a great Easter holiday.
Take care,
Bob

Sorry Telemundoh, you can't skate away from what you are. You believing in the Obama BC stuff moves you solidly into the kooktard category. I was just suggesting a new 'tardism to fall back to, when reality finally edges into your mushed up melon of a brain, and even you have to admit the Obama BC story ain't goin nowhere.

I would hope so. Very expensive paperweights to have sitting around. I had too many for a while, five is enough, nine was just too much.

I'm not angry enough for you?

That's ok, you're angry enough for both of us, with some left over.

Bob everythings fine in my sleepy little village and thanks, we had a great Easter, and a good general election just over.

Radio is dismal though, i have never know propagation so bad. Only on LF chasing the NDB's have i had a bit of luck. MW is awful and even regulars like 1557 France Nice are not even coming in anymore. SW is not much better - the ham bands are dead and the aero bands are not coming through either - I used to get New York ATC on 5598 every morning, but havent heard them for months now.

Autumn is here and the drastic 100F weeks of heat have now given way to cooler cloudy weather and a bit of rain.

Next week I have to go to hospital for a few days for a double hernia op, so wish me well. August is the next DXpedition to Jongensgat and in September we go to Atlanta to see my son and daughter-in-law and my new grandson.

Keep trying for those TA's in Hobe Sound - if you are getting 1521 Saudi Arabia you can get others with good propagation -> good luck with that.

Bob the DX has not been good here in my sleepy little village - propagation has been very poor - even MW regulars like 1557 France Nice are not coming through and on SW my 5598 NY aero band has not been heard for awhile. LF and the NDB beacons has been okay though on occasion - some nice Brazilian beacons.

Well if you are getting 1521 Saudi Arabia then that promises for lots more in your Hobe Sound -> good luck!

No more DXpeditions until Jongensgat when we will go in August. In September we fly Delta to Atlanta to see my son, daughter-in-law and grandson. Have to have a double hernia op in hospital next week, so wish me well.

Yes we had a great Easter and nice weather - the weeks of 100F scorchers has gone and autumn is in the air with cool cloudy days and some rain.

Riskier mortgage lending practices, imposed by government, were what set the stage for many mortgage payments to stop and thus for the financial disasters that followed. Political rhetoric, echoed in the media, seeks to obscure that painfully plain fact.

Obama's 100th day is upon us and the new president is ramping up an expansion of government that will place him alongside some of the most notorious dictators in history.

President Obama sees himself as the new FDR, armed with a new New Deal. But the New Deal wasn't new when FDR did it. The charismatic Roosevelt was more than 200 years behind John Law's Mississippi Bubble. Just like Obama's and FDR's "deals," John Law's prescription for what ailed France required no sacrifice. But ultimately, his system would only serve to forestall France's bankruptcy, not solve it. Law himself would die near poverty a decade later.

John Law's use of a bank to create money out of nowhere to pay for government programs was imitated by Roosevelt, Hitler, and Mussolini.

There’s something very curious – even laughable – about watching the media assemble to offer President Obama a grade after the first 100 days. They weren’t exactly a team of dispassionate scientists in a lab. They continue to be what they’ve been all along -- a rolling gaggle of Obama cheerleaders -- only before it was a campaign and now it’s an administration. So now they’re assessing whether their awe-inspiring historic candidate still glows with the luster of victory. Hmm...let’s see. They applied the luster, they boasted of the luster, and you can bet your bottom dollar they’ll continue doing both.

Big Joe Polka Show is on the RFD channel now.I wonder if I am the only Mississippi Coon Ass in Mississippi who watches that show? I especially like it when they are singing in Polish and Checoslovakian language.I have always loved Polka Music.

Lenin was never a socialist.

"Socialists mainly share the belief that capitalism unfairly concentrates power and wealth among a small segment of society that controls capital, creates an unequal society, and does not provide equal opportunities for everyone in society. Therefore socialists advocate the creation of a society in which wealth and power are distributed more evenly based on the amount of work expended in production, although there is considerable disagreement among socialists over how, and to what extent this could be achieved."

Hi John. this came up a week or 3 ago. i just called Craig at KIWA last night on another item. and i ask about the famous M/W Loop. and Yes! he has all parts and manual in stock. he also does repairs on this loop. so, if you are needing parts or just a check-up, just call the man. myself, i'll never part with this loop. but, the prices on ebay are out of sight. Good DX to you John.

Why wouldn't he? And, certainly someone at the WH knew what was going on. But now, from what I understand, someone has been appointed to 'investigate'!

When you fools out there finally figure out that Boy Barry and crew are full of shit, please get back to us.

Hi Drifter,
Thanks for the info, but shipping the Kiwa MW Loop both ways to the States is going to cost around a crippling $600, so that's out. Fortunately it's performing top of the line and regularly brings in catches from stations 8,000 miles away, so I don;t think anything is wrong with it and I don't think it needs tuning.

Craig is always very helpful and on the one occasion some years back when I blew it by touching a beverage to it by mistake, Craig identified the problem with me and sent out some small transistors to fix it for a few dollars.

Good DX

"10 companies that could go bankrupt"

Clear Channel:

The main business of CC Media, the parent company of Clear Channel Communications, is selling ads, and that's a tough one in this market.
The company posted a $3 billion loss in the fourth quarter of last year.

As the largest radio company in the U.S., Clear Channel needs to put a lot of ads on the airwaves. So the steady decline in radio advertising -- the market is projected to shrink 11% this year -- has hammered the company. In the fourth quarter of 2008, its radio broadcasting unit's revenue was down 13% from a year ago.

Many media companies are facing similar problems. Worse for Clear Channel is that it recently borrowed the remaining $1.6 billion of the $2 billion in lines of credit it had available. That has some worried that CC Media, owned by private-equity firms Thomas H. Lee Partners and Bain Capital, is struggling to keep up with payments on the $17 billion-plus it has in outstanding debts.

After seeking $11 billion in taxpayer funds for retooling and a $9 billion credit line from the U.S. government, Ford Motor Company decided to contribute to community organizer/racial agitator Al Sharpton’s National Action Network (NAN), helping to finance the group’s 2009 national convention in New York City in April.

Here is the timeline of the events of the child's illness and treatment in Houston.

http://www.chron.com/disp/story.mpl/front/6400968.html

April 3 - Child arrives with mother and three brothers at the Matamoros airport. The family crosses Gateway International Bridge to Brownsville, and stays with mother for two nights at Staybridge hotel in Brownsville.

April 5 - Family members, including an aunt, mother, and three brothers travel to Houston. According to Cascos, the aunt and mother had medical appointments there. The group eats out and goes shopping at the Galleria.

April 8 - Group returns to Brownsville, child falls ill

April 13 - Child admitted to Brownsville hospital, then to Texas Children's the next day.

April 27 - Child dies in Houston

They did not enter the US illegally, but rather went to Houston for what is perhaps the best medical facility in the nation. The mother and aunt may have gone to MD Anderson Cancer facility, or St. Lukes Heart facility, or Methodist Hospital. From this and more information in the Chronicle article, it is apparent that the family has money. Shopping at the Galleria and staying at a hotel there is not like Wal-Mart and Motel 6. They flew from Mexico City to Matamoros and crossed there legally, then went to Brownsville. These people were not here illegally nor were they sponging off our health care facilities.

Calm down.

Band allocations and time zone conversions for the USA. Includes broadcast bands used outside the USA. For multi-use bands, primary usage is shown.
Some stations operate outside official bands. Information is from Oct 2005 FCC rules and Jan 2006 NTIA manual, see Chapter 4 of:
http://www.ntia.doc.gov/osmhome/redbook/redbook.html

Frequencies are in kHz. Usual spacing in shortwave broadcast bands is 5 kHz. Frequencies above 10000 kHz tend to propagate better during the day; frequencies below 10000 kHz tend to propagate better at night.

Phone line as SW antenna Bill McFadden
billmc@agora.rdrop.com

Changes preceded by "|".

WARNINGS AND DISCLAIMERS

Connecting unapproved devices to phone lines may be illegal in your area. Telephone lines present a potential shock hazard. Do not use this antenna for transmitting. Use at your own risk.

INTRODUCTION

This article describes how to use a phone line as a shortwave receiving antenna. Performance will vary depending on the kind of phone line you have. Overhead lines usually make okay antennas, while underground lines | usually don't. Phone lines carrying DSL service may be unsuitable because | DSL operates over a wide spectrum. A phone line antenna will generally pick up more power line noise than a dedicated antenna, so don't expect to | use it for DX work. Nevertheless, I found that it outperformed the
| telescopic whip antennas built into many portables.

A reader sent in this suggestion: If you're concerned about connecting the phone line directly to the receiver, try wrapping the phone cord several times around the receiver's telescopic whip antenna instead. Performance may not be as good as a direct connection, but it will probably be better than the whip antenna by itself.

Someone else wrote asking about lightning protection. I haven't thought much about it because thunderstorms are rare in my area. Most phone lines have lightning arrestors on them where they enter the house, but the lightning arrestors may pass enough energy during a lightning strike damage a receiver. My suggestion is to disconnect the antenna when not in use if you experience frequent thunderstorms.

HOW TO DO IT

The simplest connection is a single capacitor between the phone line and receiver. The capacitor eliminates all phone line voltages, including | ringing, so that they will not harm the receiver. The capacitor should
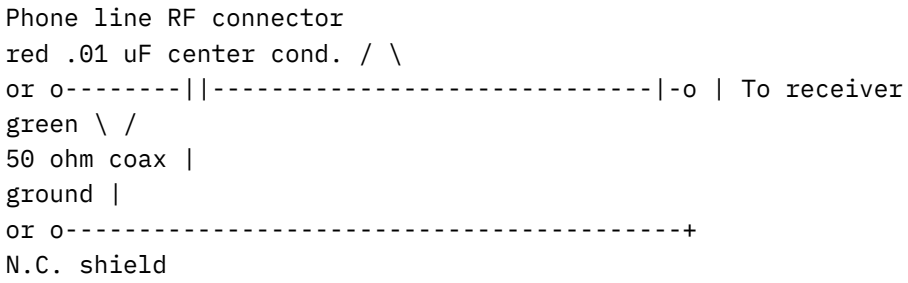
| be rated 250 volts or higher.



N.C. = no connect. I originally connected the phone line ground (yellow wire) to this terminal, but reception was better without it (if you do this, play it safe and put a .01 uF capacitor in series). If another ground is available, you can connect it to this terminal.

If you are picking up local AM or FM radio stations on the shortwave bands, it is likely that your receiver is overloaded. Inexpensive and portable receivers usually lack the filtering needed to eliminate this interference, but you can make your own filters. Filters can also be | purchased from shortwave dealers (see below for recommendations).

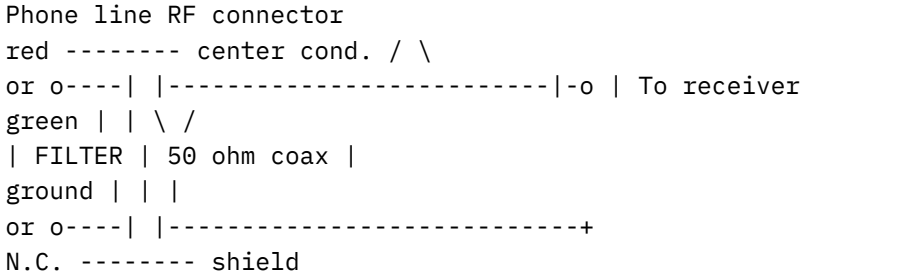
A high-pass filter can be used to remove signals below the shortwave bands. It rejects interference from local AM stations and presents a high impedance to the phone line at audio frequencies so that the phone line remains balanced.

A low-pass filter can be used to remove signals above the shortwave bands. It rejects interference from FM and TV stations, as well as VHF 2-way radio transmitters. If you use both filters, connect the output of the first filter to the input of the second (don't forget to connect their ground terminals together). It doesn't matter which filter is connected first.

These filters also work well with random wire antennas. Just connect the antenna in place of the phone line.

The filter(s) should be connected to the phone line in this manner:



| RECOMMENDED FILTERS
| If you don't want to make your own filters, the following have good | performance, are well-built and affordable:
| Model 400 BCB interference filter (3.5 MHz highpass)
| http://www.iceradioproducts.com/filtersrf.html#bcb

| Model 420 HF lowpass filter (30 MHz lowpass)
| http://www.iceradioproducts.com/filtersrf.html#3
| (scroll down a bit to see the model 420)
| If you have a random-wire antenna, the following unit will provide | impedance matching and lightning protection (connect antenna to 450-ohm | terminal):
| Model 182A beverage matching unit
| http://www.iceradioproducts.com/reconly.html#Beverage Matching

Subject: BC Band Hi-Pass Filter

The following ascii-schematic diagram is a high pass filter that will filter out Broadcast Band (MW) stations. I found it a great boon to my shortwave listening since local MW stations overload my ATS-803A front end & appear in SW, especially with a long antenna.

If you remember my antenna saga, I went from 50 feet to 150 feet & had overload problems causing me to cut back to 50 feet. (Even at 50 feet, I still have some MW interference). I took the advice of Gary Coffman and looked up filters in the ARRL Handbook. With the filter in place, I intend to try to increase my antenna length again.

Anywho, here is the filter, for interested parties.

--------||---+----||-----+----||-----------
} }
{ {
} }
-------------+-----------+-----------------

The outer capacitors are 1500 pf ceramic disks.
The inner capacitor is 820 pf ceramic disk.
The squiggly things are coils (two total). Each one is 2.7 uh.
(a close value will do).

Subject: Re: BC Band Hi-Pass Filter

I built the filter that Paul Blumstein posted recently and measured it on a gain-phase analyzer. Here are its characteristics:

100 kHz -120dB
500 kHz -68dB

1000 kHz -38dB
1600 kHz -15dB
2100 kHz -3dB

The source and load impedances were 50 ohms. Because the filter has five elements, the attenuation is 30dB per octave. The measurements confirmed this.

This filter seems to be a good compromise between interference attenuation and passband response. There is very little attenuation in the 120m band and above. It could use a little more attenuation at the upper end of MW, which could be done with more stages or a higher cutoff frequency. Alternatively, you could build two of these filters and put them in series. (Since two 1500pF capacitors in series are really 750pF, you could eliminate one cap.)

Just for fun, I put 470 ohms in series with the input to see how the filter performed with an antenna mismatch. The response was:

100 kHz -105dB
500 kHz -60dB
1000 kHz -35dB
1600 kHz -15dB
2300 kHz -3dB

These figures are normalized to the passband response of -15dB, which is due to the impedance mismatch between the source and load and would have been there without the filter. Hence, the filter works almost as well in spite of the mismatch, which is good news to those who use long-wire antennas.

Subject: Construction of filters for SW reception

Several people have asked for construction details of the filters I built for my DX-440.

The high-pass filter helped some, but in my location the VHF/UHF broadcasters are also causing problems. So, I dug out the ARRL handbook and chose a 7-element Chebyshev low-pass design that is -3 dB at 35 MHz, -20 dB at 43 MHz, and -50 dB at 64 MHz (all calculated; it works well in practice!)

LOW-PASS FILTER (Rejects FM, TV, etc.)

chassis ground

I had to do a little more improvising at this point. I used .33 uH instead of .36, and .66 uH instead of .42, but it works fine.

The 5-lug terminal strips were perfect for these circuits, since there are 4 lugs plus a grounded lug. All "ground" connections go to the lug that is mounted to the chassis, and the other 4 lugs are used for each of the connections on the signal line. One terminal strip is used per filter. Since both filters were necessary to clean up the hash, I am going to put them both into one box when I get the time.

The proper way to connect them is in series, i.e.

signal in ------- filter 1 -------- filter 2 -------- signal out

There is no difference between ends. They are "bilateral" which means you can't possibly hook them up backwards. (In the above schematics,

COIL WINDING

You can make the coils yourself using this formula:

L = 0.2 * B^2 * N^2 / (3B + 9A + 10C)

L is the inductance, in uH
A is the length of the coil, in inches
B is the mean diameter of the coil, in inches
C is the diameter of the wire, in inches
N is the number of turns

For small wire, you can assume C = 0.

Over the last two seasons I have had some great success, including getting two catches of a lifetime. So I got to wondering why things had got so much better in the last two seasons compared with the very many years I have been DXing (43).

The radio's have improved and undoubtedly the instant availability of 9 and 10 kHz steps have made it quicker to get around the MW band, particularly over the crucial TOH (Top of Hour) segment when the station ID's come in. This gave an advantage over my old Drake R8B as it could not have the steps so easily set. But this factor was not really the reason my hit rate of stations ID' had improved so much.

Then in a brilliant flash I realised that the single biggest factor in vastly improving my hit rate was the acquisition of a top line mp3 recorder (an Edirol R-09). I realised that over my old Sony MiniDisc that was laborious to record on, I now had complete freedom to record endlessly whatever was on the air. With the old Sony, I didn't record more that one hour in four days of DXpeditioning, whereas now, with the huge 70 hour capacity of the mp3 my recording rate had shot up to seven hours over the same period.

With the necessity to work quickly over the TOH, I simply write in my log the recording ID number and the minutes and seconds mark I heard an ID on, even though I do not recognise it myself at that time. I then move on to gather as many TOH ID's as I can. After the session I go back over the recording ID's and write them up in my logs, but many cannot be easily ID' in the field and require more intensive investigation when you are at your home QTH with all your facilities.

My two magnificent lifetime catches had come this way - it was only days later at home QTH after intensive investigation that the two catches revealed themselves and were subsequently successfully QSL'd. So the motto of this story is to record as much as modern technology now allows you, and your catch rate will improve markedly.

Of course a lot of top MW DXer's are now using SDR's like the excellent Perseus, but the principle still applies - the more recording you do and go over later the higher your catch rate is going to be.

Good listening, take lots of recordings, and good luck with your DX.

NOTE I have been using a pricey $500 Edirol R-09, but there are large numbers of mp3 recorders in a wide price range starting from as little as $50. You should look for one that suits your requirements, such as long recording time, wide audio range, long battery life and good well lit display. The Edirol has every imaginable feature and a brilliant display; I have not regretted one cent of what I spent on it.

Obama At 68% Approval As He Completes First 100 Days. Best First 100 Day Showing Since JFK.
Mr. Obama's 68 percent approval rating at the 100 day mark is better than the ratings of his two immediate predecessors, George W. Bush (whose approval at this point was 56 percent) and Bill Clinton (whose approval was 49 percent). Going back to 1953, only two presidents - John F. Kennedy (83 percent) and Dwight Eisenhower (72 percent) - had a higher approval rating at this point in their terms.

Struble, after several years of your digital “rollout” you never have any substantial or noteworthy news. All you have is worthless announcements like the number of iBiquity “partners’ you have or the number of iBiquity radio licenses awarded or some high-end car manufacturer is offering your digital radio junk as an option that nobody really wants.

Issues like consumer acceptance or the number of real stations committed to your junk are always inflated or just lies. You look foolish to the world.

If you really want to promote HD radio then quit lying about its progress and admit that it just isn’t working. Then maybe a real digital radio system can be developed and implemented the right way. But I don’t think you have the balls to do that.

Dr.DaviD, PhD (Piled Highest & Deepest) is a confirmed Useful Idiot Savant.

Lenin identified “Useful Idiots” as those who lived in liberal democracies and furthered the work of communism.

Useful Idiots are naïve, foolish, ignorant of facts, unrealistically idealistic, dreamers, willfully in denial or deceptive. They hail from the ranks of the chronically unhappy, the anarchists, the aspiring revolutionaries, the neurotics who are at war with life, the disaffected alienated from government, corporations, and just about any and all institutions of society. The Useful Idiot can be a billionaire, a movie star, an academe of renown, a politician, or from any other segment of the population.

Arguably, the most dangerous Useful Idiot is the “Politically Correct.” He is the master practitioner of euphemism, hedging, doubletalk, and outright deception.

The Useful Idiot derives satisfaction from being anti-establishment. He finds perverse gratification in aiding the forces that aim to dismantle an existing order, whatever it may be: an order he neither approves of nor he feels he belongs to.

The Useful Idiot is conflicted and dishonest. He fails to look inside himself and discover the causes of his own problems and unhappiness while he readily enlists himself in causes that validate his distorted perception.

Understandably, it is easier to blame others and the outside world than to examine oneself with an eye to self-discovery and self-improvement. Furthermore, criticizing and complaining—liberal practices of the Useful Idiot—require little talent and energy. The Useful Idiot is a great armchair philosopher and “Monday Morning Quarterback.”

The Useful Idiot is not the same as a person who honestly has a different point of view. A society without honest and open differences of views is a dead society. Critical, different and fresh ideas are the life blood of a living society—the very anathema of autocracies where the official position is sacrosanct.

Even the “normal” spends a great deal more energy aiming to fix things out there than working to overcome his own flaws and shortcomings, or contribute positively to the larger society. People don’t like to take stock of what they are doing or not doing that is responsible for the conditions they disapprove.

The Useful Idiot, among other things, is a master practitioner of scapegoating. He assigns blame to others while absolving himself of responsibility, has a long handy list of candidates for blaming anything and everything, and by living a distorted life, he contributes to the ills of society.

The Useful Idiot may even engage in willful misinformation and deception when it suits him.

The lesson is clear. Beware of the Useful Idiots who live in liberal democracies. Knowingly or unknowingly, they serve as the greatest volunteer and effective soldiers of communism.

Faux News is pathetic. Rachel Maddow is far more intelligent than any of the ballistic conservative mouthpieces for the GOP on Fox. Given the way the public eats up all of the reality crap on TV, I'm not sure why you think viewer ratings mean much. Obama's popularity ratings are a pretty clear sign that Fox's impact is limited even if they do top the other news channels. Perhaps a better explanation is that all the conservatives watch Fox in a block while all other viewers are split and fractured across all the other news channels.

In other words, your logic isn't as elevated as you seem to think it is. Go back to drinking your namesake.

I work in television. Fox News is largely ranting and raving and hardly what I consider news. MSNBC has a lot of analysis (vs hard news) as well. I don't watch enough CNN to comment.

I do watch Fox News a lot, especially on the weekends. I get my "news" however from the BBC World Service and selected web sites.

As far as the Nielsen ratings go, they are having credibility issues right now, so it's probably best you don't give them too much cred.

And I understand what the protests are about. Hell, I'd probably join in a rebellion, if it came to that.

Mr. Obama is only superficially different than Mr. Bush. They are both tools.

One Big Absolute Mistake America!

1808. Steelers to lose Super Bowl Trophies

Pittsburgh, PA. The Super Bowl XLIII Champion Pittsburgh Steelers, the only team to win six titles, will soon be losing half of those trophies. After a meeting between NFL Commissioner Roger Gadel and President Barack Hussein Obama, Obama decided to redistribute half of their Steeler Super Bowl victories and trophies to less fortunate teams in the league.

"We live everyday in the country that invented the Super Bowl." said Obama "We are not about to lose this Great American tradition in the wake of these difficult times."

Obama's plan calls for the Steelers, who are a successful NFL team, to give half of their Super Bowl trophies to teams that are not successful or have not been as successful as the Steelers. "The Detroit Loins are just as much a part of the same fiber of the NFL as the Steelers and they should, no rather will, be entitled to a Super Bowl Trophy as well." Obama explains in his plan that he has imposed on Godel and the NFL.

The Pittsburgh Steelers, who by virtue of hard work, excellent team play, stellar draft choices, responsible investing of free agents, careful hiring of coaches and excellent community service and commitment to their fans, has prospered greatly during the past 30 years and have won six Super Bowl Trophies. But President Barack Hussein Obama's plan calls for the Pittsburgh Steelers to carry the larger burden of the NFL's less successful teams.

Obama went on to further proclaim, "In these difficult times we are all in this to work together. We must reclaim the NFL Championship Dream for every team, for every city and for every fan." "My plan will not affect 31 of the 32 teams in the league." Obama assures.
That's over 95 percent of the teams in the NFL will not have to worry about loosing any Super Bowl Trophies. "The worst teams in the NFL and the teams that can't seem to get a break and win a championship will no longer have to worry about going without a title." Obama promises. "We are a country and league of hope. We all need to make a change. It does not matter the color of the teams uniforms, the personal decisions that the teams make or their performance but rather if they are a member of this great American league."

The Super Bowl XLIII trophy will be redistributed to the 0-16 Detroit Lions. Through no fault of their own incompetence, the Lions could not manage a victory all season and this trophy will help ease the pain of their lack of performance and give them hope once again. The redistribution of Super Bowl XL trophy will go directly to the Steeler's division rival the Cincinnati Bengals. The Bengals who also have fallen on hard times have never won a Super Bowl. This victory will bring a smile to hundreds of Bengal fans all over the world as they can now celebrate.

Finally, one of the Steeler's two Super Bowl victories over the Dallas Cowboys will go back to the Cowboys since the league needs to provide hope in the face of difficulty and provide hope in the face of uncertainty.

This is a heavy burden for the Steelers but together we can all prosper. All hope is not lost for Pittsburgh fans, Barack Hussein Obama has another plan in place. Obama has meet with MLB and commissioner Bud Selig on a similar plan. The New York Yankees will redistribute two of their world series trophies to the Pittsburgh Pirates as a supplement to their loosing 16 straight seasons and counting. This plan will help stimulate the Pirates and enable them to regain the American Dream. Barack Hussein Obama will be meeting with the NHL and Michael Phelps in the upcoming weeks as this issue is high on his agenda for "Hope and Change."

Considering the source - the wishful thinking network of Dan Rather - that isn't a surprising statistic. Now let's go to a different source and see what they had to say:

"The president's approval is nearly identical to the job rating George W. Bush received at the same point in his first term, as 63 percent of Americans approved and 22 percent disapproved (April 18-19, 2001). One noticeable difference is that approval of Obama is much more divided along partisan lines today than Bush's ratings were eight years ago.

There is a wide 68 percentage point gap between the number of Democrats (92 percent) and Republicans (24 percent) who approve of the job Obama is doing. For Bush, there was a 50-point gap in April 2001."

http://www.foxnews.com/politics/first100days/2009/04/24/fox-news-poll-obamas-days/

Take your pick, but I sure as hell wouldn't take CBS's word for anything. Fox and ABC both agree that Obama's ratings are typical for this point in his term.

"CPB/NPR to Fit Square HD Peg Into Round Hole"

"First, National Public Radio (through the CPB) has already extensively studied this issue, more than anyone else in the industry, and the results are pretty unequivocal that increasing the power of a station's FM digital signal will adversely affect not only its own analog host-signal, but also those of neighboring stations. So much so, in fact, that the (first) study's coordinating engineer has admitted in other fora that an increase in HD sideband power levels is much more likely to do harm than good."

http://www.diymedia.net/archive/0409.htm#042909

Bob, we know that Ford and your other 2010 automaker announcements (cough, cough) are waiting on the reults of the 10 db power increase - ain't going to happen, dude! Also, no one will be able to afford it:

"Upping HD Radio signal strengths"

"The short math given what we know today is that it will cost roughly double on the transmission end to increase HD Radio FM power tenfold. There are likely to be additional costs for cooling and air handling as well, in order to dissipate the excess energy required to get out another 10 dB in HD Radio signal. And, for some higher powered stations, existing HD Radio configurations may not be able to handle the power load, which could add to the cost and complexity of increasing HD Radio beyond its current power level... Also worth considering is existing transmitter combiner technology and whether or not it can support the added demands of increasing HD Radio broadcasts another 10 dB. If not, then it’s very likely that stations at the higher power levels will need to factor in a new antenna system that can support HD Radio, rather than piggyback onto their existing FM antenna system. At the higher powers, especially, an immediate 10 dB increase in HD Radio signal may be cost prohibitive... This will typically mean the addition of another similarly rated transmitter (using a combining technique) or the purchase of a new transmitter of roughly twice today’s power level."

When this is over, Bob, all you will have left is your KRI Armband Portable HD Radio boat-anchor - what are you going to use as an antenna - the headphones? LOL, dude!

"Radio Giant Faces Crisis in Cash Flow"

Clear Channel, the nation’s largest radio station operator and an outdoor billboard company, last year became the biggest leveraged buyout ever in the media business, after it was taken private by Thomas H. Lee Partners and Bain Capital.

Now its revenues are plunging and so is its cash flow, making it harder to meet the payments on the billions in debt accumulated in the process of buying out its public investors. If it violates some of its loan agreements, those interest payments rise sharply.

Scott Sperling, a president of Thomas H. Lee Partners, offered reassuring words about the company’s future in an interview on CNBC in mid-April.

“We do not have any expectation of an imminent blowup,” he said, adding that the company still had “a lot of levers it can pull to continue to generate reasonable cash flow.”

But days later, Clear Channel announced that revenue plummeted 23 percent in the first quarter and cash flow fell by 47 percent.

On Wednesday, the company announced it was laying off 590 employees after cutting 1,850 employees in January, for an overall staff reduction of 12 percent since the acquisition.

Bishop Cheen, who follows corporate bonds for Wachovia, wrote recently that Clear Channel was on track to become the biggest default among media companies and therefore the biggest workout ever in the industry.

The company’s options may be limited. Many financially pressed concerns have been able to persuade creditors to exchange debt for equity and thus avoid a default and a bankruptcy filing. At Clear Channel, getting creditors to go along with such a plan could be tough because the original deal was fraught with so much ill will, including an unusual court fight.

“Before the 2008 purchase closed, there was a battle between the banks and private equity funds, who went to court to force the banks to complete the deal,” said Neil Begley, a Moody’s debt analyst. “While the equity holders would prefer an out-of-court restructuring, in this case they may not be able to come to terms with the banks.”

The company has $16 billion of bank debt, on which it pays variable rates, and $6 billion more of junior debt. The holders of the junior debt and the equity holders would absorb the first loss in the event of a bankruptcy, so the banks have some protection and less incentive to negotiate.

As advertiser spending plunges week by week, the likelihood grows that Clear Channel will fall out of compliance with one of its loan covenants by year's end and be in technical default, several analysts said. The covenant requires that debt not exceed 9.5 times its cash flow. Lately, Clear Channel has been adding to its debt even as its cash flow is shrinking.

Media companies of all types are suffering from the recession while consumer appetites are shifting in the digital revolution. Those laden with debt may buckle, with the biggest so far being the Tribune Company, thrown into bankruptcy after Sam Zell borrowed heavily to pay $8.2 billion for the company and assume $5 billion more of its existing debt. When Bain and Thomas H. Lee finally completed the Clear Channel acquisition in July after two years of struggle, they paid $18 billion and assumed $5 billion in outstanding debt. Today, there are few buyers for broadcast assets. Should the market rebound, the company could be worth about $12 billion, Mr. Begley of Moody's said.

Mr. Cheen estimates its market value today at less than $6.3 billion. "The market has gone from irrational exuberance to excessive awfulness," he said.

Though many companies acquired by private equity firms at the end of the bubble are in trouble, critics say the Clear Channel deal was ill advised from the start. The acquirers raised their bids several times to win over the previous shareholders even as the economy weakened.

"Most investors in Clear Channel were thrilled that the private equity guys took radio off their hands," recalled Michael Nathanson, a media analyst at Sanford C. Bernstein & Company. "Many had deep concerns because the industry was not growing during a period of economic expansion. So what would happen when things slowed down?

"This has been an industry facing secular challenges since 2002. Dollars were moving away from local market, and radio was losing share of dollars to the Internet."

Within months of closing the deal, the company announced a plan to cut costs. Dismissing 9 percent of its workers, or 1,850 people, would cut $350 million in annual costs, it said in January. A month later, under pressure to free up more cash, Clear Channel drew down a remaining $1.6 billion credit line.

Meanwhile, the sons of Clear Channel's founder, L. Lowry Mays, have taken pay cuts. Mark Mays serves as chief executive and Randall Mays as chief financial officer. (The family made hundreds of millions of dollars when the company was sold and retains an ownership stake.)

With an estimated $1.4 billion in cash on hand, the company appears to have enough to manage through the next few years as long as it does not violate its bank agreements, Mr. Begley of Moody’s said. The company has to pay $1.3 billion in interest annually on its debt, and it and analysts project that it needs more than $1.5 billion in cash flow this year.

Some analysts say it may not have been possible to foresee the economic collapse that has put so much pressure on Clear Channel. Still, critics wondered if there were ever a viable exit strategy.

“In radio they were the biggest in the industry, so there was no likely strategic buyer,” Mr. Nathanson of Sanford Bernstein said. “We were more optimistic about their outdoor advertising business because there was a chance to sell it to a foreign buyer.”

A public offering was unlikely because the stocks had languished for years, he said.

Bain and Thomas H. Lee put up $450 million each for the deal. Their investors put up an additional $2.1 billion. Each firm receives an annual management fee of about $6.7 million, and each earned about $43 million in so-called transaction fees for their roles as bankers in the deal. They passed on two-thirds of those fees to their investors.

Other radio companies are suffering, Citadel Broadcasting and Cox Radio included. Cox, though, has avoided layoffs so far. Its senior debt is four times cash flow, compared with nine times at Clear Channel.

Marci Ryvicker, an equity analyst at Wachovia who follows the radio industry, said, “If you have the opportunity and capital structure to take market share from your peers, you will be one of the surviving radio companies.”

Hi John,
Do you still get the old postcard QSL's? I was just wondering, or do you just log them as received. I have an old shoe box with plenty of QSL's received when I was in jr/sr high school with my old Hallicrafters S-120! Do stations even send the postcard QSL's anymore?

When the NPR 10db Power Increase happens; then KQED-FM 88.5 MHz will not only be in Stereo with a Blinking Blue Light {almost HD}; will then have a Solid Blue Light {Strong Digital Siginal} from SFBA to Twain Harte, CA roughly 120 On-the-Air Miles.

-Only someone of RHF's extreme ideological bent could think that anyone could "shout" more than the likes of O'Reilly or Hannity.

-Only someone of RHF's extreme ideological bent could think that conservatives do not loudly and consistently shout daily about the "liberal" media, which by RHF's definition seems to be everyone but FOX and Rush.

-Only someone of RHF's extreme ideological bent could think that anyone complaining about FOX's obvious bias is a bigger threat to "Freedom of Choice" than observation of the fact that 98% of news reporting agencies across the entire planet report entirely different news as does FOX.

I watch FOX News heavily on the weekends, since MSNBC's weekend programming isn't that interesting. FOX is truly frightening. What they do is just ethically wrong.

The First Amendment gives me the right to complain LOUDLY about conservative (or any other kind of) politics. We not only have the right, but as Americans we have the RESPONSIBILITY, to speak up when we see the truth being blocked and distorted.

You also have the same rights and responsibilities.

While I don't 'think' HD-Radio makes sense on the AM-MW Band.

I do 'think' that HD-Radio and HD2 Channels make sense on the FM Radio Band.

AM & FM are Two Different Radio Bands with Two Different Sets of Technical Parameters.

The Future of FM Radio is Two Fold :
* FM HD-Radio + HD2 Channels
* An Expanded FM HD-Radio Band {76~88 MHx}

Fox News will have to live with the burden of being number one.

Nielsen does not determine the viewership of the 25-54 demographic by broadcasts done in public venues.

You nothing about making a cogent analysis. You started by making an idiotic comparison with Katie Couric and Fox News.

MSNBC has hacks galore in Chris Matthews, Ed Schultz, Keith Olbermann and Rachel Maddow. Most of their guest commentators come from Air America, Salon, New Republic and the Daily Kos.

You can't explain why MSNBC's ratings are in the toilet. I find it rather amusing that Headline News' Nancy Grace beats out Olbermann in the time slot they share and Olbermann is MSNBC's top dog.

MSNBC's latest addition to provide analysis is Ed Schultz. Guess what?
Schultz is tanking.

From 5:00 PM to 10:00 PM on weekdays, MSNBC programs commentators during prime time. At least CNN and Fox News have a news program during that time period.

I expect this sort of thing to happen with the Obomination as president.
Things will probably get much worse. Expect to be persecuted for being Christian one of these days.

Funny how you keep calling me a kook, yet I don't believe in any kooktardic nonsense, such as the Obama BC fairy tale. That's all yours, Telemundoh..

If you're an ultra right winger, I suppose. I'm not, nor am I an uber left winger either, so both are "target rich".

LOL, so what issues are those, Telemundoh? I don't believe in the Obama BC story.

I'll leave the kooktardery to you and your fellow kooktards.

Yes they do. Except for the metered markets, all viewing is recorded in diaries. If a person remembers viewing FOX in a bar or restaurant, they can write it down.

Funny, but I can't find anyone but this one wingnut website mentioning this (and a few others quoting it verbatim), and I notice that none of them include any references that we can look at ourselves.

I guess some people will just take anything on faith.

That sort of drives another nail in the coffin. You are part of the problem and you're proud to admit it.

You don't even have a clue how repugnant the Liberal news is.... And you're suppose to be the "perceptive" people "informing us"? I hate to tell you but you're going to be out of work soon because your Liberal slant on the news is losing market share for you. I know you're counting on government subsidies but Government is broke and printing money as fast as they can to keep from tanking the economy. It's pure insanity that I have to tell you that your days are numbered when you're the NEWS people that should be digging up the truth.... you're blind, blind drunk, or deaf dumb and blind.

The "WE HATE BUSH" News channels are plain pitiful. The news isn't objective in any way shape or form.

Everything that fagot turd posts is always bullshit. But lets say there is something to it, all you right wing trash does is talk shit about it, so fuck off.

You know what buitch, most of the thinking country is sick as shit about the right self-victimizing Christans and the Republican party.

Get the fuck over it.

Re: I guess some people will just take anything on faith.

It would appear so. The article is indeed all over the net, and all are identical Going to the NPR Home Page and nosing around, some interesting facts about NPR are stated:

http://www.npr.org/about/nprworks.html

"NPR was incorporated in 1970 pursuant to the Public Broadcasting Act of 1967, but it is not a government agency. NPR is not a radio station itself NOR DOES IT OWN ANY radio stations, but NPR programs can be heard on more than 860 public radio stations across the United

And

http://www.npr.org/about/

"A PRIVATELY SUPPORTED, not-for-profit membership organization, NPR serves a growing audience of 27.5 million Americans each week in partnership with more than 860 independently operated, noncommercial public radio stations."

Reading DonkeyDoo's cite in the original post we see that the writer used the phrase "...In explaining its decision in a similar matter, PBS -- another federally funded media outlet -- ". Another FEDERALLY funded outlet? Looks like the writer of DonkeyDoo's cite is not up to speed on things.

Didja' ever wonder how Urgan Legends begin?

But have no fear there will still be plenty of the good old Trash Christianity PBS and NPR Programming featuring hidden themes like :
* Was Jesus and the Disciples Really Gay
* Jesus the Socialist and Revolutionary
* The Gospel of Mary
* The Gospel of Judas
* The Da Vinci Code
* Art 101 - Painting Jesus By The Numbers Using Elephant Dung
* Whats Wrong With Christianity Today

Please Note NPR and PBS never has done a "Trash" Islam, Buddhism, or Judaism Program as it would clearly be seen as Bias and Bigoted.

GOOD LIBERAL SECULAR FUN ~ RHF

For those enamored of Hugo Chavez....RADIO NACIONAL DE VENEZUELA, English from Cuba, heard in Nevada about 15.2 MHz, 23:00-24:00 GMT
Friday May 1, SINPO 55445.

Prime Time Shortwave doesn't list any English freqs. except in 49 meter band, so this 19 meter sched might be easier.

Sorry abt approximate freq, was listening on trusty 1963 transistor Royal 1000D-1 Transoceanic.

RRR Cult's Leaders -- Masters of DECEPTION

To which I replied:

Just look at the quantity of posts in these groups from our fellow egalitarians who blame "Christians," RATHER than the people that they ACTUALLY are concerned about -- the PSEUDO-Christian RRR Cultists.

As for the RRR Cultists, themselves...

The ability to reason well is directly proportional to IQ. Just as gullibility is inversely proportional to it.

The cagey and crafty False-Teacher leaders of the RRR Cult know that very well. Take James Dobson, for example, of "Focus on the Family" -- one of the MOST potent organizations of the oligarchical cult. He's NOT a preacher. He's a self-admitted PSYCHOLOGIST.

The RRR Cult COUNTS on being able to con people of lower intellect. Since the leaders know that there is NO WAY that most of their precepts would fly higher than a tungsten vulture with people of average and above intelligence.

See this graph: http://www.phdiqtest.com/images/iq-bell-curve.gif

Note that 15% of any given large population has IQs of 85 and lower. 85 is actually fairly decent, when combined with a good modicum of common sense. I'm far more concerned about the degree to which people of IQ 73 and lower can be conned when subjected to a barrage of hate-propaganda. (The threshold of mild mental impairment is regarded to be 70.)

About 5% of the population is 73 and lower.

And the RRR Cult's lemmings comprise about 5% of the population.

Considering the concerted TARGETING of the lower-intellect folks for recruitment by the cult's leaders, I don't think that's coinci-dental.

Of COURSE there are many people having IQs above 73 who are RRR Cult lemmings. And of COURSE there are many people having IQs lower than73 who have or want nothing to do with the RRR Cult.

But it would be VERY interesting to know the degree to which those two subsets of the general population overlap!

A good thing to always keep in mind, UNTIL the agendas of the RRR Cult join those of their first cousins in ignorance and bigotry, the Segregationists, in EXTINCTION, is this:

RRR : U.S. Society :: 5% Arsenic Solution : Glass of Drinking Water

I'm not really understanding this, NPR? Does this mean any religious shows on any of the Clear Channel stations or does it mean on all the BCB? In reference to what you said Telamon about "things will get much worse and expect to be persecuted for being a Christian one of these days".....you do know that silly dumb book called The Bible said it will get much worse (not better- sorry Obama and others) and that indeed Christians will be persecuted. But hey, what does that stupid fairy tale book know? ;-)

Some do, some don't. Some will verify via email, and some might even send a nice jpeg or word doc. that one can print off.

As with the case of my recent QSL of KFGO, Fargo, ND, I sent a prepared card which they signed and returned to me.

The prepared card method seemed to work well with SW stations that didn't always have their own card. That worked well with many Indonesian stations.

Best bet is to keep trying and attempt to find out what works for a particular station.

SAINT HELENA In various e-mail of Apr 17-24, Gary Walters, the Station Manager of R St. Helena (RSH), wrote to me:

- the Radio St. Helena Day 2008 QSL cards have arrived at RSH on Apr 16 and they look fantastic, and I am sure that DXers who are eagerly waiting for their cards will be pleased to have one in their collection.

- My wife has played a big part in collating all information / addresses and putting it directly onto her laptop, this will speed things up dramatically.

- Last night I spent two hours signing the QSL cards for JAPAN and my wife was putting them into their appropriate envelopes and sealing them down. If we spend two hours per night we should get through them pretty quickly.

- So, the first who will be receiving their QSL cards sometime early May will be our friends in Japan. The reason for this is because we received the highest number of reports from Japan.

- The QSLs will be sent to Ascension, because that postal route has proven to be much safer.

- I have enclosed a compliment slip with each card and some will receive a small map of the island and other info from the tourist office. I thought this would add a nice touch. I did this because I have received many kind words from nearly all who sent me a report. I found this to be very uplifting indeed.

- RSD 2008 QSL cards for Germany are also ready to be posted. Now we just have to wait for the ship to return from Cape Town to take all these QSLs to Ascension.

- I have read every single letter from DXers from around the globe where each one contains words of friendship saying how pleased they were to have heard R St Helena, even if they could not make out some of the broadcast, it was still a thrill to many who managed to receive us from so far away. For me, starting the broadcast was like riding on the crest of a wave! Love to do it again!!

What everyone should do IMO (which will never happen) is to google the archives of that sad morning of 9-11 in rec.radio.shortwave (when you think Bush went too far in his war on the idiots) and the days after.
It was a tragic day but it was cool how everyone in this group pulled together and actually showed their feelings and for once (as far as I remember) people weren't calling others retards for their beliefs. How quickly people forget. And I can say I was the FIRST one to post that morning as soon as the first attack happened because I was trying to log a station in New York. After that post it was wild how one after the other joined in with their reports. Here in the Nati' hearing those fighter jets just absolutely blow over my QTH was something that was mind blowing and scary as crap.

My three scanners were going nuts, I will always have those micro-cassette tapes - front and backs filled with local chatter and of course that dumb ass Alex Jones (what did he know) that kept warning for months BEFORE that the Towers were going to be hit...lol. Yep, ole' Alex is just a nut and doesn't have a clue. ;-) I also have the tapes of that day of Alex's show - a classic. What was really stranger and surreal was when all the planes were grounded and the message from the towers telling everyone to get out of the skies. That was the only day there was silence on those bands and I hope it never happens again. I will never forget, but it sure sounds like our new leader has.

I was responding because it was implied Nielsen's analysis was based generalizations instead of surveys done on individuals. I don't think there is any credible survey that supports his claim.

Dave claims to be an aficionado of the BBC and MSNBC. Both have been exposed for their egregious reporting and commentary. The TV salesman says he doesn't watch CNN. CNN so-called journalist reporters are sympathetic the Liberal side of the issue.

People whine that Fox News is an arm of the Republican party. If that's case, why did their commentators have criticized President GW Bush and the GOP leadership? Most of Fox's commentators didn't embrace John McCain in the last election but eventually supported him because of Obama's Liberal extremism.

The so-called tolerant Liberals cannot reconcile to the fact that Conservatives will not support the legislation of an extremist Liberal.

You live in the boonies. FM IBOC takes up 3 analog channels. We don't have that much space on the dial here in the big cities. The smaller stations get wiped off the face of the dial.

Your reply is very disjointed, but I will try.

Which BBC is that article about? Home Service? World Service? TV?
Radio? Personally, I think the Israelis act a lot like the Nazis back in Germany.

I love Reverend Jeremiah Wright. Bill Ayers has always been an ostentatious brat.

MSNBC heard somebody on Fox call it "teabagging" and reacted like Beavis and Butthead; good for them. The more we laugh, the less likely we are to engage in hostilities.

I still don't see how comparing Katie Couric's ratings (the worst on network TV news) is irrelevant. That's where most people get their news. If you watch Fox carefully, you'll note they do the same 22 minutes of news as CBS. They just do it over and over again.

You seem to think MSNBC is bad because they use outside commentators from partisan organizations, but it's OK for Fox News to dredge up hacks like Newt Gingrich and Oliver North, who (in your mind) are unbiased outside experts.

Both channels are pure entertainment, as far as I'm concerned. I don't trust either one to provide me with a competent picture of what is happening in the world.

Fox News has better numbers in part because they have a bunch of long-legged blonde bimbos. They also love to appeal to the whiny white male victim-crat, which I'm guessing you are one of.

I provide high-end technical support for "live" TV programs. I am told it is a very high-pressure job, but I ain't feeling a bit nervous, because I excel at what I do.

I work on Reality TV, game shows, awards shows, conventions, etc. I have no control over content whatsoever.

The 24/7 "News" channels are pure entertainment. Only a moron would take any of that drivel seriously.

The POS Christians have flooded the NCE FM band with their 24/7 begathon translators, spewing hatred and ringing in the bongo bucks, while crowding out the Community Radio stations who are not funded by megachurches. You have a lot of nerve complaining about a government subsidised network wanting to represent all Americans fairly.

They could never run IBOC here.. not on AM, not on FM. As I tune across my car radio there are maybe 5 or 6 spots on the entire dial that do not have first adjacent channels.

I own a Satellit 750 and an Icom IC-R7000. Neither of these are capable to decoding DMR or HD signals [a few HD signals exist in the Tampa-St Pete and Orlando markets (I live between the two)]. I know MFJ produces a nice unit that decodes Morse Code transmissions. Does such a device exist for digitally-encoded transmissions?

I bought it at one of the Goodwill stores around here about 15 years ago, I think it was the Goodwill store that used to be on Palmyra Street.I haven't gotten around to trying it out yet, it looks to be in good condition physically and cosmetically.It is sort of a unique and ufonious looking radio.I think the radio dates back to the 1960s, maybe.Are those radios suppose to be real good at DXing?

If you had carefully read the cite I gave, you would also see that PBS accounts for less than 2 percent of NPR funding.

1916. Obama - just average according to Gallup poll

President Obama is just average.

At least by the standard of approval ratings.

Though Obama's job approval score is strong and has been since he took office, historical polling data shows Obama's popularity during his first 100 days is right in the middle of the scores other new presidents received from the public over the past 60 years.

Obama's 63 percent average, according to a study released by Gallup last month, is the highest for a new president since Jimmy Carter (he clocked in at 69 percent during his first 100 days).

But John F. Kennedy bested Obama by more than 10 points, with 74 percent. Dwight Eisenhower enjoyed a 71 percent rating early on.

Even Richard Nixon averaged a 62 percent approval rating, just 1 point shy of Obama's.

Overall, Obama's average for the first three months matched the historical average of 63 percent for presidents since Eisenhower. ...

Every room in my house is a junk room, Literally.I have three old foot lockers cramed full of small radios and larger old radios scattered around in every room, I am pretty sure I own over three hundred old radios.This morning, I was poking around in one of my bedrooms, come Lawdy junk rooms.I had forgotten I have that Panasonic RF-2000 radio.

Heh, this morning I received a snail mail letter (two pages) from that married Irish woman wayyyyyy over yonder across the big pond in Bognor Regis,England.She got a 30 Pounds (British money, 30 Pounds) parking ticket on London Road in Bognor Regis.If she doesn't pay it by a certain date, it jumps to 60 Pounds.She has already paid off the 30 Pounds ticket.
She said they are thieving bastards! She is right too.

My radio looks completely different than those in the radiointel links you posted.Let me check the Model number again.

It says, Panasonic Model RF-2000.FM - AM 2 Band 12 Transistor 7 - Diode Freq Range FM 87 ~ 108 MC AM 525 ~ 1605 MC. Battery Four ''C'' Size Flashlight Batteries 6 V (Panasonic UM - 2 Or Equivalent) Design Certified As Complying With FCC's Rules.Part 15, In Effect As Of Date Of Manufacture.Matsushita Electric Industrial Co, LTD.Made In Japan.

On the back of the radio, there is what looks like a winding knob, like on the back of some wind up travel clocks, but perhaps larger size.Right below that it says, DX M L

On the top of the radio, there is a little lever, below the lever it says, Auto Tuning.To the left side of the lever, there is a tuning knob, it says Manual Tuning Press And Turn.(to make the dial indicator turn, I have to press down slightly and turn.There is a slide switch on top for FM and AM.To the left side of that, there is the OFF - VOL knob.On one side of the radio there is an ear phone jack.Below that, there is a jack for EXT PWR DC 6 V.Below that, there are three more jacks.Remote 1 2 3

There is a single pull up/push down antenna.On the face of the dial it says, Radar Matic FM - AM 12 Transistor.
I had forgoten to mention earlier there is a bad scuff mark across part of the plastic dial face.The radio has a black leatherette (or whatever) covering, it feels like it is padded underneath the cover/covering.

I sound like Cowboy in the Kelly's Heroes movie, up there in that bell tower.

For your information numbnuts, "teabagging" was said on your favorite news source MSNBC in an interview of that loser ex-Airhead America host Janeane Garofalo with Keith Dopeymann. Beavis and Butthead does sound like your speed. The term was also used by that effeminate journalist Anderson Cooper.

Your showing your ignorance. You cannot discern between a news reporter and a commentator. Commentators by their very nature are biased. You also fail to recognize the other outside commentators Fox News has such as Juan Williams, Ellis Hannigan, Bob Beckel, former Democratic Congressman Harold Ford, Jr., former Democratic vice-President candidate Geraldine Ferraro, Jane Hall and Susan Estrich.

CNN does have Bob Bennett and MSNBC has Pat Buchanan.

You are sure building up your ignorance cred.

Of course you have a cite to back that up.

In the 25- to 54-year-old demographic that Fox sells advertising for, Foxï¿½s audience was 12 percent bigger than CNNï¿½s during an average hour last year (2008).

Yeah, since all law is based on moral religious grounds it kicks the foundation out from under a nation founded on the rule of law.

Sounds like global warming to me. You see we actually all have "faith".
The retards have "faith" in godless things and deceptions created to further mislead them down the path of destruction. By all means continue

And then there was Bill Moyers hour-long

"war on Christianity" like a show documenting the origins and versions of a Christian hymn.

The Obomination is an antichrist as far as I can tell so that is my expectation. This scum bag even voted for partial birth abortion. Next up will be further limitations on religious speech prohibited by the constitution while at the same time atheism in its many forms will be encouraged. Further down the road more Christians will be persecuted for praying in any public place or property. Military chaplains have already been sanctioned for mentioning Christ in prayers and services for example.

All three cars will share the Voltec powertrain, which will use an electric motor for propulsion. A battery pack will supply electricity to the motor for the initial 40 or so miles of driving. After that, an onboard gasoline generator will come on to juice the battery pack for roughly 200 more miles of travel.
Once out of gasoline, the Ampera's lithium-ion battery can be recharged via a standard 230-volt outlet. GM will release more data on the European-specification Ampera at the Geneva show

It's not BS Dave and you know it. This is a nation of laws that have their inception in religious teachings. The ten commandments used to be posted in the courts and one used to swear on the bible that they are telling the truth so help them God. Where do you think this came from, atheists?

Dave here is a simple question :
Would "You" Torture A Terrorist To Save The Lives
Of Your Family and Loved Ones ?

Not Talking About Bush/Obama.

Not Talking About US Military/CIA/FBI.

Not Talking About The Fedral/State/Local Authorities.

Dave I Am Talking About You : Just You {Dave}
An The Lives And Safety Of Your Family.

Again Dave Here Is The Question :
Would "You" {Dave} Torture A Terrorist To Save

Don't know about DRM (Digital Radio Mundial), but IBOC is proprietary and licensed. At this time, any such device would have to pay an exhorbitant licensing fee (last I heard, it was $50) or else be a pirate device. You MAY see something out there on the black market, but doubt you will see one any time soon in any legitimate source (assuming, of course, that IBOC isn't dead long before such device were ever brought out).

Actually Telamon is Right.

Yes in-fact then Illinois State Senator Obama stood-up on the Illinois State Senate Floor and spoke out 'For"
"Partial Birth Abortion" which is the Killing of Living Full-Term Babies.

Then once again in-fact Illinois State Senator Obama Voted Aye {Yes} for "Partial Birth Abortion" -aka- the Killing of Living Full-Term Babies -by- Voting Nay {No} 'Against' a Born-Alive Infants Protection Act which would have Banning many/most Partial Birth Abortions in the State of Illinois : Thus Protecting The Rights

My answer, framed and answered at the level of your simple and naive words is Yes. But the question makes no sense unless you are 5 years old. You sound like the kid who asks if The Hulk could beat Wolverine.

Your question pre-supposes that the terrorist HAS the information that would save your family, AND that torture would extract that information from a man who is convinced of his pending martyrdom. The WTC 9-11 incident proves that the terrorist is the modern day equivalent of a Kamikaze pilot.

It would have to be fairly hard to find a pirate in amongst all of the crowded band.. if it were broadcasting in Korean.. but an English language station would tend to stick out like a sore thumb. (unless it were on 88.1, 88.3, 88.5 or 102.7, which are the AFN assignments).

You know, I think even your half of this discussion is flying right over your head.

You denied being bent on conquest, and in your very next post you pretty much admit to it.

Jesus gets very disappointed when you lie like that.

Despite having been here nearly a decade now, I still know very little Korean. I learned the alphabet very early on, and can read all the signs, etc. (most of the signage here uses English, Spanish and French words translated into Hangul characters, btw), but only know the most basic touristy sort of stuff (how much does that cost, how are you, is anyone here, etc., etc.).

I don't bother firing up the station, haven't in years, since the local AFN affiliate moved on base (from their old spot on a hill a few Km from here) and more or less destroyed any ability to hear the station on base, which of course was the target audience. Before that, the signals were more or less equal strength and neither could desense the other (they run a whholloping 40 watts EIRP from the top of the AM tower.. about 150' or so HAAT. I could run 35 watts at about 10' HBAT). I just run it online now. Totally legal that way, and probably get more listeners (2 or 3, instead of none.. LOL)

Most international broadcasts come from Cuba.

There are some domestic Venezuela SW stations.

4939V Radio Amazonas, Puerto Ayacucho is one.

Where did you get this news?

I complained to them about their signal sounding really bad at night when the phase cancelations occurred and the hiss in general anytime day or night.

I can see it is off right now at 6:13 PM PT. Is it off day and night now or just night time?

Note to Rightwing Extremists:
When you get to your new Gettysburg, don't expect Rush, Hannity, Perry, Goldberg or O'Reilly to be on the field with you or leading Pickett's Charge. They won't be. They will be way at the back out of harm's way.

Well for starters there is this constant stream of anti-Christian BS posted by idiots like you. You think I like coming to this news group and read your totally thoughtless crap? Actually it's mindless crap.

The 'basis' of this Question is :

What You Would "Reasonably" Do To Protect Your Family :

You Should Except The US President and the US Government To Do To Protect The Nation and It's Citizens.

The Answer is simple : YES. -or- NO. ~ RHF

I got the news by tuning-in and noticing I did not have to turn off my Synchronous Sideband to make the wuba-wubba-wubba go away. This was in the day time.

That's great news Dave. Now I can listen to KFI in the evening again.
Hopefully the the IBOC will stay off.

In the car in the daytime if I traveled behind a large building, hillside or any weak signal area that noise would show up. It was very annoying.

Only a kooktard like you could claim I'm depressed. It makes you feel better to think so, I suppose.

How are claims of christians being persecuted pertinent? Oh, I forgot, if it comes from you, it's special.

It does not "come from me" and it has happened in the past, and it is happening now Kookaburra.

Special is a word used to describe you in polite company.

Even though you can't say who or how.

Oh, that's right -- you don't know what the word means.

Carry on, k00k.

Forgot to mention the key characteristics...

- Thinks making noise is the same as saying something.

- Thinks IKYABWAI is the mostest extremest insult like evar. Except like maybe calling someone ghey.

- Thinks getting the last word means he "wins".

I won't see it, but go ahead and prove me right, you pathetic Christofascist parrot. You can't resist.

It seems like Telemundoh has made a couple of new "fans".

He's such a bitter old bastard, isn't he? Maybe Jaysus will be calling him home soon...

Another dangerous cancer caused by asbestos exposure is lung cancer, of which there are two types: small cell lung cancer and non-small cell lung cancer. The latter is the most common type, accounting for nearly 80 percent of known cases. The identification of lung cancer is determined by the appearance of cancer cells under a microscope from a tissue sample.

ACTUAL Christians, vis-avis RRR Cultists

Normal Christians are everyone's sensible, fair-minded, pretty intelligent, ordinary, unobtrusive, work-a-day next-door neighbors.
Unlike the RRR cultists, we are quiet, low-profile, and friendly people who usually have a live-and-let-live attitude with respect to the personal affairs and behaviors of other people. Very few of us ever engage in any form of busybodyism or discrimination. In America, 83% of the population professes Christianity. Only a mere 6% of those are obnoxious and bigoted RRR Cultists. The other 94% of us are normal and tolerant. We comprise about 250,000,000 of the USA's 300 million people. IF we were anything like the RRR cultists, America would be a tyrannical theocracy that would make Iran look benign by comparison. So PLEASE -- keep these two completely opposite groups of people straight in your minds, and don't blame "Christians" when you see hatefulness and bigotry. We do NOT deserve to be wrongfully painted with the RRR Cult's brush. (And one more thing... the RRR loves to make people think that Christians oppose abortion.
That's a major LIE. Fully 2/3 of Americans support the right to choose, and reliable polls show that has been consistently true for over 30 years. And 5/6 of Americans are normal Christians. Do the math.
Most of us are sensibly Pro- Choice! When it comes to breaking that Commandment against lying, RRR cultists are experts at it.)

Mythical to you not to me.

> More like multiple gullibility.

Yes, you are very gullible.

Jack Kemp died yesterday. I shook hands with him once when he was campaigning. His hand literally swallowed mine and it made me feel like I was a little kid shaking hands with a adult. That hand must have encompassed a football he was holding.

You never met Jack Kemp so was he mythical person?

So how is that any different from worshipping money or gold? Unbridled capitalism wreaks just as much havoc as any totalitarian system.

FYI, I believe in capitalism but recognize the necessity of checks and balances. Don't even bother trying to label me as something else.

It would only be the several-thousandth time I've put up with the losers and bigots of the RRR Cult.

The FUN thing is that they are so EASY to REFUTE!

Because NO FACTS even EXIST that support their loathsome and hateful agendas.

Thus, they are a joke. And I'm having a LOT of fun delivering their punch-lines AT them.

I always import the data you provide into Excel where the data is easily sorted anyway you would want. Usually I sort in this order: station, frequency, and time. Makes finding what I want a trivial matter.

Thanks again for providing this data. You provide a very valuable resource.

Seems as though the folks at the BBC were/are enthralled with him. I heard several program bits on our local area's NPR overnight relay. WVGR 104.1, typically runs BBC 10 PM to 5 AM ET daily.

There is no shortage of Christian programming in most markets. In fact most of the spectrum that was made available by changes to translator rules, changes to low power education rules and the provision of new low power broadcast stations resulted in much of the lower end of the dial being "cluttered" with religious broadcasters where you once would hear college or high school stations or translator outputs in rural markets.
I think NPR is simply reinforcing what had been the original intent of the charter.

Telemundoh! will claim that they were recruited to the "godless" cause.
Religious zealots - the one who think there always right and the rest of

It is a cross posted flame thread so don't get excited.

If you are godless that's your problem not mine.

The issue Mr. comprehension impaired is Christian themed programming getting the boot on the NPR network.

If you want to continue looking like the goof ball that you are do continue to try changing the topic of the thread.

You'll find the CSV at the bottom of eg http://users.fulladsl.be/~spb13810/swlist/AF/index.htm

http://users.fulladsl.be/~spb13810/txlist/MightyKBC_BigL/index.htm

There are 4400 CSV in total (!). They are ";" seperated. Made with a linux machine, the script exists since about 1998 (under netbsd.org then) (!), I was not online then. It is written with tools so that I do not have to change it when (MS/Apple) change their development environment.. (So why would anybody still develop with their tools? eg mono-project or wxwidgets.org would be better, my "clue" is bash shell..)

Of course, when a page only has one line of data, a freq/time order doesn't make sense ...

The CSV file is very useful and a snap to open in Excel. I wish other people that provide frequency lists on the Internet were as enlightened as you about character delimitated files.

Steve,

Keep us posted on what you find. I was just thinking about how much HCJB used to be everywhere on the dial back when I was a kid. I sure miss their programming.

Well, I do know that she has three woven wall hangings, though none have 'HCJB' on them. Once upon a time I had one that had 'HCJB' on it.

She also has three posters, one I think with the inauguration of the hydro power plant, one with some children on it, and one with the antenna arrays (the one I'm really interested in).

Also the hat and the pamphlets and/or brochures.

The posters she indicated are from the early 80's, not certain about the other items.

She wanted $25 for the lot, but I'm not interested in the wall hangings, so I'll have to dicker with her tomorrow.

RRR Cult's Leaders -- Masters of DECEPTION

To which I replied:

Just look at the quantity of posts in these groups from our fellow egalitarians who blame "Christians," RATHER than the people that they ACTUALLY are concerned about -- the PSEUDO-Christian RRR Cultists.

As for the RRR Cultists, themselves...

The ability to reason well is directly proportional to IQ. Just as gullibility is inversely proportional to it.

The cagey and crafty False-Teacher leaders of the RRR Cult know that very well. Take James Dobson, for example, of "Focus on the Family" -- one of the MOST potent organizations of the oligarchical cult. He's NOT a preacher. He's a self-admitted PSYCHOLOGIST.

The RRR Cult COUNTS on being able to con people of lower intellect. Since the leaders know that there is NO WAY that most of their precepts would fly higher than a tungsten vulture with people of average and above intelligence.

See this graph: http://www.phdiqtest.com/images/iq-bell-curve.gif

Note that 15% of any given large population has IQs of 85 and lower. 85 is actually fairly decent, when combined with a good modicum of common sense. I'm far more concerned about the degree to which people of IQ 73 and lower can be conned when subjected to a barrage of hate-propaganda. (The threshold of mild mental impairment is regarded to be 70.)

About 5% of the population is 73 and lower.

And the RRR Cult's lemmings comprise about 5% of the population.

Considering the concerted TARGETING of the lower-intellect folks for recruitment by the cult's leaders, I don't think that's coinci-dental.

Of COURSE there are many people having IQs above 73 who are RRR Cult lemmings. And of COURSE there are many people having IQs lower than73 who have or want nothing to do with the RRR Cult.

But it would be VERY interesting to know the degree to which those two subsets of the general population overlap!

A good thing to always keep in mind, UNTIL the agendas of the RRR Cult join those of their first cousins in ignorance and bigotry, the Segregationists, in EXTINCTION, is this:

Yeah, Bob, I think it was the first station I heard when my parents gave me my first SW portable back 1967. HCJB English religious programming was the strongest signal, as I remember. It was enough to really stoke my curiosity. I found a DX column in some popular tech magazine at the library and was ordering my first WRTH from Gilfer by 1968.

Listening to HCJB's current limited lineup of Spanish (along with some Portuguese and German) programming just isn't the same.

Like Steve, I think some of the old pennants would be really cool.

Please point to where it says in this artcile he "voted" for "Partial

I don't know which site is giving you these slanted summations, but they are different from the article. "Obama's Abortion Extremism"
This article never mentions Obama voting for Patial Birth Abortion.
He did oppose Born Alive Act because babies born alive are already protected inder Illinois Law. It is dumb to spend time and money to make a second law that says the same thing as the first law.

This was the one I was refering to in my first post. It is from a pro-life site. It never says he voted for Patial Birth Abortion. In the article it quotes him "On an issue like partial-birth abortion, I strongly believe that the state can properly restrict late-term abortions. I have said so repeatedly. All I've said is we should have a provision to protect the health of the mother, and many of the bills that came before me didn't have that."

Doesn't sound like a endorsement of partail birth abortion to me.

‘Mama Sara’ will set off to Mecca for Islamic pilgrimage required by Quran

President Barack Obama’s paternal grandmother, Sara Obama (right), will reportedly perform the Muslim Hajj pilgrimage this year along with her son Syeed Obama.

A private Kenyan television channel, quoted extensively by the Kenyan and Pakistani media, reported Sara Obama and her son will also visit Dubai before going to Saudi Arabia for performing haj. The pair live in Kenya.

The News, a newspaper in Dubai, confirmed the report. It quoted United Arab Emirates’ property tycoon Sulaiman Al Fahim as stating he will personally sponsor Sara Obama’s trip after meeting the elderly Obama in Kenya last week and learning she had always wanted to perform the Hajj.

“I found out that she had not been to the Hajj and that she very much wants to go. As my own mother is no longer with us, our family has a spare place. So I invited her and she has accepted,” The News quoted Fahim as saying.

Obama’s grandmother, a Muslim known locally as “Mama Sara”, lives in Kogelo, a tiny village near the Ugandan border. She was in Washington, DC in January for Obama’s swearing in ceremony.

The Hajj is the largest annual pilgrimage in the world. The fifth pillar of Islam requires every able-bodied Muslim to travel to Mecca at least once in their life in a demonstration of solidarity with fellow Muslims and in an act of individual submission to Allah.

Obama was ‘quite religious in Islam’

Obama’s faith was a central part of his presidential campaign. He has repeatedly has denied he is a Muslim. His presidential campaign website contained the statement, “Senator Obama has never been a Muslim, was not raised as a Muslim, and is a committed Christian.”

But as WND has reported, public records in Indonesia listed Obama as a Muslim during his early years, and a number of childhood friends claimed to the media Obama was once a mosque-attending Muslim.

Obama’s campaign several times had wavered in response to reporters queries regarding the senator’s childhood faith.

Commenting on a Los Angeles Times report quoting a childhood friend stating Obama prayed in a mosque. Obama's campaign released a statement explaining the senator "has never been a practicing Muslim."

Widely distributed reports have noted that in January 1968 Obama was registered as a Muslim at Jakarta's Roman Catholic Franciscus Assisi Primary School under the name Barry Soetoro. He was listed as an Indonesian citizen whose stepfather, listed on school documents as "L Soetoro Ma," worked for the topography department of the Indonesian Army.

Catholic schools in Indonesia routinely accept non-Catholic students but exempt them from studying religion.

After attending the Assisi Primary School, Obama was enrolled "also as a Muslim, according to documents" in the Besuki Primary School, a public school in Jakarta.

Laotze blog, run by an American expatriate in Southeast Asia who visited the Besuki school, noted: "All Indonesian students are required to study religion at school, and a young 'Barry Soetoro,' being a Muslim, would have been required to study Islam daily in school. He would have been taught to read and write Arabic, to recite his prayers properly, to read and recite from the Quran and to study the laws of Islam."

Indeed, in Obama's autobiography, "Dreams From My Father," he acknowledged studying the Quran and describes the public school as "a Muslim school."

"In the Muslim school, the teacher wrote to tell mother I made faces during Quranic studies," wrote Obama.

The Indonesian media have been flooded with accounts of Obama's childhood Islamic studies, some describing him as a religious Muslim.

Speaking to the country's Kaltim Post, Tine Hahiyary, who was principal of Obama's school while he was enrolled there, said she recalls he studied the Quran in Arabic.

"At that time, I was not Barry's teacher, but he is still in my memory" claimed Tine, who is 80 years old.

The Kaltim Post said Obama's teacher, named Hendri, had died.

"I remember that he studied mengaji (recitation of the Quran)," Tine said, according to an English translation by Loatze.

Mengaji, or the act of reading the Quran with its correct Arabic punctuation, is usually taught to more religious pupils and is not known as a secular study.

Also, Loatze documented the Indonesian daily Banjarmasin Post interviewed Rony Amir, an Obama classmate and Muslim, who described

Obama as “previously quite religious in Islam.”

“We previously often asked him to the prayer room close to the house,” Amir said. “If he was wearing a sarong (waist fabric worn for religious or casual occasions) he looked funny.”

The Los Angeles Times, which sent a reporter to Jakarta, quoted Zulfin Adi, who identified himself as among Obama’s closest childhood friends, stating the presidential candidate prayed in a mosque, something Obama’s campaign claimed he never did.

“We prayed, but not really seriously, just following actions done by older people in the mosque,” said Adi. “But as kids, we loved to meet our friends and went to the mosque together and played.”

Friday prayers

Obama’s official campaign site contained a page titled “Obama has never been a Muslim, and is a committed Christian.” The page stated, “Obama never prayed in a mosque. He has never been a Muslim, was not raised a Muslim, and is a committed Christian who attends the United Church of Christ.”

But the campaign changed its tune when it issued a “practicing Muslim” clarification to the Los Angeles Times.

An article in March by the Chicago Tribune apparently disputed Adi’s statements to the L.A. paper. The Tribune caught up with Obama’s declared childhood friend, who now describes himself as only knowing Obama for a few months in 1970 when his family moved to the neighborhood. Adi said he was unsure about his recollections of Obama.

But the Tribune found Obama did attend mosque.

“Interviews with dozens of former classmates, teachers, neighbors and friends show that Obama was not a regular practicing Muslim when he was in Indonesia,” states the Tribune article.

It quotes Obama’s former neighbors and third-grade teacher recalling how the young Obama “occasionally followed his stepfather to the mosque for Friday prayers.”

Daniel Pipes, director of the Middle East Forum, notes the Tribune article “cited by liberal blogs as refuting claims Obama is Muslim” actually implies Obama was an irregularly practicing Muslim and twice confirms Obama attended mosque services.

In an interview with the New York Times, Obama described the Muslim call to prayer as “one of the prettiest sounds on Earth at sunset.”

The Times’ Nicholos Kristof wrote Obama recited, “with a first-class [Arabic] accent,” the opening lines of the Muslim call to prayer.

The first few lines of the call to prayer state:
Allah is Supreme!
Allah is Supreme!
Allah is Supreme! Allah is Supreme!
I witness that there is no god but Allah
I witness that there is no god but Allah
I witness that Muhammad is his prophet …

Some attention also has been paid to Obama's paternal side of the family, including his father and his brother, Roy.

Writing in a chapter of his book describing his 1992 wedding, Obama stated: "The person who made me proudest of all was Roy. Actually, now we call him Abongo, his Luo name, for two years ago he decided to reassert his African heritage. He converted to Islam and has sworn off pork and tobacco and alcohol."

Still, Obama maintains he was raised by his Christian mother and repeatedly has labeled as "smears" several reports attempting to paint him as a Muslim.

"Let's make clear what the facts are: I am a Christian. I have been sworn in with a Bible. I pledge allegiance [to the American flag] and lead the Pledge of Allegiance sometimes in the United States Senate when I'm presiding," he told the Times of London earlier this year.

"Yes, Obama. Keep removing those letters that represent Jesus, Savior of mankind from the background of those Christian settings…"

"Is it true that Muslims or Islamics, or whatever, are permitted to lie if it serves a purpose that is (supposedly) beneficial to their religious agenda(s)? I have read where others have stated that is so but have never seen actual proof of this."

White House Denies Charge By Attorney that Administration Threatened to Destroy Investment Firm's Reputation

A leading bankruptcy attorney representing hedge funds and money managers told ABC News Saturday that Steve Rattner, the leader of the Obama administration's Auto Industry Task Force, threatened one of the firms, an investment bank, that if it continued to oppose the administration's Chrysler bankruptcy plan, the White House would use the White House press corps to destroy its reputation.

The White House and a spokesperson for the investment bank in question challenged the accuracy of the story.

"The charge is completely untrue," said White House deputy press secretary Bill Burton, "and there's obviously no evidence to suggest that this happened in any way."

Thomas Lauria, Global Practice Head of the Financial Restructuring and Insolvency Group at White & Case, told ABC News that Rattner suggested to an official of the boutique investment bank Perella Weinberg Partners that officials of the Obama White House would embarrass the firm for opposing the Obama administration plan, which President Obama announced Thursday, and which requires creditors to accept roughly 29 cents on the dollar for an estimated $6.8 billion owed by Chrysler.

Lauria first told the story, without naming Rattner, to Frank Beckmann on Detroit's WJR-AM radio.

Perella Weinberg Partners, Lauria said, "was directly threatened by the White House and in essence compelled to withdraw its opposition to the deal under the threat that the full force of the White House press corps would destroy its reputation if it continued to fight. That’s how hard it is to stand on this side of the fence."

A Perella Weinberg Partners spokesperson told ABC News on Sunday that “The firm denies Mr. Lauria’s account of events.”* The spokesperson would not elaborate.

Perella Weinberg Partners, which owned Chrysler debt through its Xerion Fund, was one of Lauria's clients in this bankruptcy, but no longer is. The firm is led by Joseph Perella. On Thursday afternoon -- after the Wedneday deadline -- the portfolio manager for the Xerion fund decided to join the larger four creditors who are owed roughly 70% of Chrysler's debt and had already agreed to participate with the administration's plan.

Those four financial institutions - JP Morgan Chase, Citigroup, Morgan Stanley, and Goldman Sachs -- are recipients of up to $100 billion in federal government bailout funds, though the Obama administration insists the matters were kept completely separate.

Someone familiar with the Perella Weinberg Partners' portfolio manager's thinking told ABC News that the decision to go along with the government plan "was based on an assessment of investment risk and reward and nothing else."

Lauria said his clients "are mainly fiduciaries for pension plans, college endowments, retirement plans and credit unions who invested in low yield supposedly very secure first lien debt" with Chrysler.

President Obama singled out Lauria's clients for criticism when he announced the Chrysler plan on Thursday.

"While many stakeholders made sacrifices and worked constructively, I have to tell you some did not," the president said. "In particular, a group of investment firms and hedge funds decided to hold out for the prospect of an unjustified taxpayer-funded bailout. They were hoping that everybody else would make sacrifices, and they would have to make none."

Lauria said the president's assertion that his clients weren't willing to make any sacrifice is false. The clients were willing to take 50 cents on the dollar from Chrysler for their debt, he said.

President Obama also said of Lauria's clients, "I don't stand with them. I stand with Chrysler's employees and their families and communities. I stand with Chrysler's management, its dealers, and its suppliers. I stand with the millions of Americans who own and want to buy Chrysler cars. I don't stand with those who held out when everybody else is making sacrifices."

"He stands my clients up as basically the reason Chrysler is going into bankruptcy," Lauria said. "He wrongly says they're not willing to make any sacrifice. And then he says he does not stand with us."

Lauria said the president saying he doesn't stand with his clients "kind of sounds like 'You're fair game.' In whatever sense. People are scared. They have gotten death treats. Some have been told people are going to come to their houses. God forbid if some nut did something, I'm just wondering how the president would feel."

The Miami area-based attorney describes himself as an independent, and says after waiting in line for six hours last November he ended up not voting in the presidential election. He donated $10,000 to the Democratic Senatorial Campaign Committee in 2008 and $1,000 to then-Sen. Hillary Clinton, D-NY, in 2006.

As I was tuning the MW band on a couple of receivers last night, I noticed far less IBOC hash across the bands. Most significantly, local WHAS has it turned off, enabling clear reception of KOA and WCCO - two of my favorites.

Hey!! YOU were the one who was DUMB enough to call a

So, in your opinion, why exactly is hate crimes legislation nessary? Are you really naive enough to believe that its to protect people? Thats ridiculous. We already have laws to do that. Hate crimes laws are to silence and stifle free thought and opinion. That is exactly why the "gay" community is so much behind this legislation. They want to be accepted as normal rather than the perverts they are. They want those that speak the truth about their perversion to be silenced, mainly targeting Christians and especially Christian pastors. If you dont believe it, look at the 7 in the northeast that went to witness to "gays" at one of their public orgies, got beat up by the "gays" then got arrested by the local police facing up to 45 years imprisonment. If they had got a liberal judge, they would be in jail by now. Ask Ockie Green in scandinavia, who is a preacher who was arrested for preaching against homosexuality. If you are too bigoted to acknowledge that this is what hate crimes legislation is for, then you just dont live in reality. Open your eyes.

They only plonk the ones they dont agree with. As long as the people they talk to are the "tolerant" ones, they are tolerant of them. But they become intolerant when someone disagrees with them and deep the other person intolerant. Isnt that the pot calling the kettle black.

Yup, they are starting to turn off both FM-HD and AM-HD, but I am sure it will be gradual - far too embarrassng for the broadcasters that bought into Struble's scam. An up-to-date AM-HD list:

http://topazdesigns.com/iboc/station-list.html

To check the actual number of IBLOCK stations converted check here (not the "near 2000 that Struble claims"):

Youve never heard of Ockie Green, or the Philedelphia Seven? Have you ever looked at Voiceofthemartyrs.org ? Man, dont try to deny the truth. Why do you think hate crimes legislation is being pushed through? Why do you think "gays" are pushing for it so hard? You think "gays" are really being persecutated these days? Hardly! But it will silence Christians from talking about their faith, either for fear of loss of job, fines, jailtime, perhaps even risk death. Hate crimes legislation is nothing more than a mask to silence people of faith. Thats it.

So what is your opinion as to why the left wants the "fairness doctrine" reinstated? You think its so they can get equal air time? Or do you believe they want to set up low power FM stations to air their point of view?
They dont need to do that. They already have the major media in their pocket, TV and print. The only thing they dont control is talk radio. But they are going to control it. They wont even have to bring in the "fairness doctrine" to do it. All they need to do, which is being bounced around at the moment, is to simply change the license renewal time from 8 yrs to 1 yr, and having someone, perhaps folks like ACORN, bring allegations of not being beneficial to the community. Thats all it takes to yank the license. So when you put that threat over a radio station owner, he either changes his content or closes his station. He cant afford to close his station, so guess what, the "fairness doctrine" is in effect implemented. And these arent on the local low power FM stations. These will be the high power regional stations, even the AM powerhouses. So your argument of all these low power religious stations "cluttering" up the lower FM band is pretty much irrelavant. No one listens to that end of the dial much. NPR is probably one of the only stations out there that is listened to because liberals dont have much else to listen to, mainly because stations that run programs like Air America cant keep advertizers. Capitalists are not going to fund programming that is communist in nature.

Frankly I don't really give a SHT about what you are saying. I listen to the FM for music and when I hear a bunch of religious cranks or wingers taking up valuable air time that could be used to play the Doors, Zappa or the Dead Kennedy's, I get pretty much ticked off. Thank you...

2181. The Tortured Rhetoric of the Reactionary Left

Newsgroup: rec.radio.shortwave

Message-ID: <483e5de0-f982-40ba-8c84-894c3c984c46@q14g2000vbn.googlegroups.com>
Source record: 177636
Cross-posted to: alt.fan.rush-limbaugh,rec.radio.shortwave,alt.news-media,alt.religion.christian,alt.politics.economics

The reactionary left has descended upon waterboarding as its new case study in why conservatives are diabolical and without conscience. The sad reality is that conservatives are reacting in the rather conventional manner of going on the defensive. Conservatives need to fight back more vigorously against this community now willing to name even Harry Truman as a war criminal alongside President Bush, Condoleeza Rice, Vice President Cheney, and so many more good citizens.

The reactionaries of the Left are celebrating their own unique sense of jingoism that has come to dominate their political community since Vietnam. In this distinct and pathological view of the world, there is only one reality -- America's imperialism. The global human community has ceased to exist for this reactionary community. 'America does not fing torture,' in the over heated words of Shepard Smith.

For the torture reactionaries, the question can only be if America tortures. The global concept of torture has completely been subordinated to a view that no one tortures in the world except as a genuine and comprehensible response to American imperialism. It is an America in need of God's damning to paraphrase one of its unrepentant spiritual leaders.

A more productive and comprehensive study of the question of torture would include: Is it torture to slowly behead someone with a knife as Musab Al Zarqawi did with American ANSWER leader's son Nicholas Berg? Berg's father Michael robotically answered this question by telling the world that George W. Bush killed his son-- completely consistent with ANSWER's reactionary brainwashing. Is it torture for Saddam Hussein and his sons to watch victims in Iraqi prisons witness the raping of spouses or have an electric drill run into someone's ankle bone? Is it torture to discharge an AK-47 into a woman's skull in front of crowds at a Kabul soccer stadium?

The prolonged silence and ambivalence of the reactionary left toward such atrocities has created a rhetorical vacuum. The reason the term "neo-conservative" was invented by the reactionary left was to close the door on an ugly divorce within their community between human rights and global politics. The Left largely no longer believes in individual human rights for people outside the United States -- with the possible exception of individuals inside the Gaza strip. The reason Pat Buchannan can sit alongside Keith Olberman on an MSNBC television set is that the paleo-con and the reactionary leftist share an ambivalence for the rights of individuals oppressed by non-American and non-Israeli points of power. For both political stances, the retraction of American power will lead to a world of useful silence wherein we will simply not know or concern ourselves with inhumanity as it may be practiced in the world. It is after all 'their culture.' The mind numbing multiculturalism is the intellectual sedative that has put the struggle for individual human rights to slumber on the Left.

Noticeably missing from the discussion of whether water boarding crosses the line from interrogation to torture is analysis of how the decision was made. The Bush administration conducted a legal debate within their ranks and the broader public sphere. That is the most important principal revealed by the CIA memos and the most important contrast principal of Obama's politics in choosing to release only one side of that debate.

The reactionary community that fuels the Obama administration does not believe in free and fair debate. They believe that strategic exclusions of information constitute appropriate means for building political power. On the other hand, within the Bush administration, the CIA, the American media, and the public, there was a constant debate about whether water boarding was appropriate.

There were no debates in Afghanistan, Iran, Iraq, Sudan, or dozens of other countries where torture actually does take place. In sharp contrast, the torture enjoyed by families such as the Hussein family of Iraq, was a matter of pure impulsive indulgence and spectacle. There was little or no notion of protecting a public sphere in Iraq. The heads of Iraqi victims were regularly posted outside the homes of victim's families after these spectacles were complete. The adamant refusal of the Olbermans, Stewarts, Riches and other reactionaries to entertain a serious conversation on global torture is one which is veiled in their jingoistic display of the flag. This is America! We don't torture!

The sad state of affairs was amplified in the recent 100 day press conference. At this event, President Obama appealed to the idea that the British refused to torture during World War II. The appeal to a foreign government as more moral than America fits easily within Obama's worldview. Obama and his team must have missed this gem from the British press published in 2006 by the Guardian:

"Sherman Carroll, of the Medical Foundation for the Care of Victims of Torture, said British authorities should also apologise and pay compensation to survivors. "The suggestion that Britain did not use torture during world war two and in the immediate aftermath, because it was regarded as 'ineffective', is a mythology that has been successfully propagated for decades," he said. "The fact that it took place should be acknowledged.

. . . Others interrogated at the same prison, at Bad Nenndorf, near Hanover, included Nazis, prominent German industrialists of the Hitler era, and former members of the SS. At least two men suspected of being communists were starved to death, at least one was beaten to death, others suffered serious illness or injuries, and many lost toes to frostbite.

The appalling treatment of the 372 men and 44 women who were interrogated at Bad Nenndorf between 1945 and 1947 are detailed in a report by a Scotland Yard detective, Inspector Tom Hayward."

Obama's misstatement is symptomatic of the community from which he draws his arguments -- reactionary and shallow. The British actually used brutal tactics against Nazis and other rivals in World War II -- including thumbscrews and shinscrews -- and continue to use techniques that most US officials would blanche at in fighting terrorists such as the IRA during the 1980s. Obama's slick answer is typical wishful thinking from the reactionary left which only allows itself to consider American and Israeli roles in torturing the innocent. It is intrinsic to the close mindedness that has descended on the Left regarding human rights as a global struggle.

The circularity of the reactionary Left's worldview is one that not only condones torture but encourages it. It is a circularity that helped America look away from the torture of the Khmer Rouge after Vietnam. It helped Clinton look away from Africa after Mogadishu when Hutus took up machetes against their brothers and sisters in Rwanda. It is a view that helps genocide expert and Obama administration aide, Samantha Power see a "monster" in Hillary Clinton when she threatened Obama's path to power, but now she sees an acceptable sovereign seated in Khartoum. The Obama administration would do well to look at the recent example of Democratic congressional members arrested at the Sudanese embassy and less to the shrill jingoism of Code Pink, ANSWER, and Michael Moore. The insular jingoistic view of torture held by the reactionary left is killing us all.

This is a violation of the constitution.

The economic concept of private property refers to the rights owners have to the exclusive use and disposal of a physical object. Property is not a table, a chair, or an acre of land. It is the bundle of rights which the owner is entitled to employ those objects. The alternative (collectivist [communist]) view is that private property consists merely of a legal deed to an object with the use and disposal of the object subject to the whims and mercies of the state. Under this latter view, the state retains ownership and may at any time regulate or even repossess the property it temporarily cedes to individuals.

I looked up dimwit in the dictionary and it states "a stupid or silly person" so please point to which one you are.

There is no "vote" for partial birth abortion. There have been bills against the practice. The Obomination has voted against this legislation at every opportunity that was presented to him and he has spoken out against limiting partial birth abortion when asked about his position.
His record is solid on this issue.

Here is video of the Obomination speaking on the issue as if you really need to see it.

Actually the "land grab" during the LPFM license windows didn't include only the EDU segment. I've seen licenses issued to churches and religious organizations across the dial. And those don't count the dozens of KLUV satellators strewn across the country.

Do you remember Hurricane Camille? What did Colonial do? Colonial jacked up the prices of bread/bakery products in the Missisippi Gulf Coast area.Sunbeam did not jack up the prices.SCREW Colonial!!!
In the Star grocery stores in the Jackson metro area, we used Magic Markers and marked on the bread 2/39

Two big long loaves of Sunbeam sandwich bread for thirty nine cents.Of course the Star stores were getting a kickback from Koestler's Sunbeam Bakery in Vicksburg,Mississippi.You know why little Miss Sunbeam can't get pregnant? No holes, Sunbeam bread is batter whipped.

Sunbeam used to have a relay store on Lynch Street in Jackson, it was accross the street from the Joy Car Wash.There was a guy we called Cowboy.He walked with a limp and he wore an old black Cowboy hat and he always toted a Revolver on his hip.He used to bring the bread in a tractor trailer truck from Vicksburg.''Tubby'' Doug Hynum was the boss at the relay store.''Potliker'' Mary was his wife.The assistant boss (Jessie Bowland) at the relay store used to hit on Doug's wife when Doug was out somewhere.Jessie married a woman (Charlene).Sometimes Charlene would phone the relay store,,, Jesse, come home, emergency!
Jessie used to get into arguments with people on the phone, he had a short temper.

BWHAHAHA! Does that question even make sense to YOU? The comparison doesn't work, but hey, you tried.

Oh yes, the radio goons will be coming soon to confiscate his receivers so he can't listen to religious programming.

He probably believes it's going to happen. Maybe he as one of them sealed up in a box, and buried in his back yard. Meanwhile, he places his hopes on the Obama BC story taking off and causing Obama's removal from office.

Maybe a better term for it is delusion, not hope.

By Voting Nay {No} 'Against' a Born-Alive Infants Protection Act which would have Banning many/most Partial Birth Abortions in the State of Illinois; the then Illinois State Senator Obama Voted for the continuation of "Partial Birth Abortion" -aka- the Killing of Living Full-Term Babies

Illinois State Senator Obama FAILED to Protect The Rights of the Live-Born {Living} Infants To Life.

Dummy/Telemon,

I understand they are votes AGAINST the practice. Please link to an actual vote Obama made against this practice. You or RHF or the right to life article didn't point to one.

Currently, there are 1,904 HD Radio Stations broadcasting across the nation.

There are 172 HD-Radio Stations in California broadcasting 256 HD Radio Channels, with 17 more coming soon.

-ps- That adds up to 84 more FM "HD2" Channels on the FM Radio Band in California alone.

What does Tecsun mean by "DSP" ?

So in 2009 they are not offering a Shortwave

The link had several videos with the Obomination speaking on the subject. Go watch them if you are able to get your computer to play them. Page yourself first though.

The analogy doesn't quite hold water, so to speak. If, indeed, you put the top up, you would stop getting rain inside the car. In the case of the flu, the raindrops would continue to reproduce, and you would still get wetter.

No. I referred to it in the manner of a belief system, in the course of pointing out that they have as much a RIGHT to believe (or NOT believe) any way they choose... and that their beliefs (or lack thereof) deserve EVERY BIT as much RESPECT as do OTHER belief systems or religions.

IMO, any person who disparages atheism is PROVING himself to an intolerant and bigoted social retard.

Not to say you aren't telling the truth Mike McM, but it always cracks me up when someone posts (to of all places) here in RRS when "they are looking for a receiver".....and eight out of ten times it is always in the range of something like you stated or more.....lol.

So let me get this straight, apparently you don't know a lick about the shortwave hobby itself because you don't know anything about receivers because you are <ahem> posting in RRS and asking what kind of radio you should buy, and you just "happen to have" at the least a grand to drop on a receiver that myself or someone else in here would tell you to buy?<rolling my eyes>

If there is any validity to your post and you are being completely honest, do your homework and find out. When you purchase your $1,000 receiver, even though you know nothing about the hobby, please feel free to post again in here and let everyone know what you purchased and what you are hearing.

Good luck on your choice of $1,000 receivers. ;-)<sigh>

Good post Telamon. I flipped the first time I heard them also, great show and real quality programming. I couldn't believe I was hearing this station "from the Andes".....though I wasn't quite sure exactly where it was so I checked out their QTH on my wall map.

Of course I just had to write them being a newbie, with a very excited written letter and a post card of Cincinnati and one from my village and within a month I got my QSL card along with a handwritten letter from a fella in the station telling me to be on the look out - - that I would be receiving something else from the station.

I received a box, in between a small and medium size package that had all kinds of goodies in them. From what I remember, there was a small calendar and a big calendar. Literature on the history of the station and Quito, Ecuador itself. Three pennants, two small ones and one extremely big one IMO - like the pennants of baseball teams. Either two or three pens and a little pad of stationary from the station, I think I may be missing one other thing but I can't think of it.

Man, why don't you get his email and you can continue your "relationship" with him. It's unbelievable, it's like you just literally cannot help yourself, I call that "power" on Telamon's part.
Just ignore him or take it private or get a grip. PLEASE!

Good post Telamon. I flipped the first time I heard them also, great show and real quality programming. I couldn't believe I was hearing this station "from the Andes".....though I wasn't quite sure exactly where it was so I checked out their QTH on my wall map.

Of course I just had to write them being a newbie, with a very excited written letter and a post card of Cincinnati and one from my village and within a month I got my QSL card along with a handwritten letter from a fella in the station telling me to be on the look out - - that I would be receiving something else from the station.

I received a box, in between a small and medium size package that had all kinds of goodies in them. From what I remember, there was a small calendar and a big calendar. Literature on the history of the station and Quito, Ecuador itself. Three pennants, two small ones and one extremely big one IMO - like the pennants of baseball teams. Either two or three pens and a little pad of stationary from the station, I think I may be missing one other thing but I can't think of it.

Somewhere in my skunkworks, I still have an HCJB pennant and program guide.
I can't remember the name of the program (it was a DX specific program), but I do know that it is no longer run on HCJB, they stopped it a few years after I got the pennant. I also have a nice tape sent at the same time of music of the Andes. I wish my brain still worked, and I could remember the name of the person I corresponded with at the time.. it's hell getting older.

Raises a valid point however... There is no useful FAQ for this N.G.; such a document, updated regularly, with comprehensive reviews of specs and performance data for boatanchor and modern receivers would permit readers to make informed purchasing decisions. The O.P. also asked for recommendations on the integrity of sellers; this is a valid question, and answers other than 'Universal Radio' would likely be welcomed by many readers. Certainly there are printed resources, commercial websites and archived N.G. threads that with effort would yield some data, but an effort to create a useful FAQ should be undertaken IMHO as a centralized resource for promoting the radio art and best practices.

Michael

ROTFL, I left him a lone for quite a while, so I think your "can't help yourself" line is pretty funny. If you don't want to read our comments to each other plonk one of us, or both of us, but stop whining about it. Who made you the group policeman?

He's getting boring anyway, too robotically right wing, so I'm going to leave him alone for a while. How long? Don't know. Depends on how bored I am, I guess.

Chinese Communist Party: May 4th with “science” but without “democracy”

Upwards of 3 thousand people, drawn from every region of China, were in the Great Hall of the People today to commemorate the May Fourth Movement which 90 years ago spread the foundations for the modernisation of the nation urging “science” and “democracy”. During official commemoration ceremonies, party leaders expounded on the “science” of modernisation, but they totally forgot to mention democracy. According to some intellectuals, there is a clamp down on freedom of thought today in China, contrary to the spirit of May 4th.

The Movement was born on this date, when in 1919 an estimated 3 thousand students from the University of Beijing led demonstrations in Tiananmen Square, first and foremost to criticise the conclusions of the Versailles Treaty – which ceded control of Shandong, under German authority at the time, to the Japanese – and secondly to demand a stronger Chinese nation, capable of countering Western powers. It went on to develop and ponder what was necessary to render China a stronger and more modern nation. The solution was found in the distancing of imperial traditions and the promotion of science and democracy (along western standards). From this foundation the Communist Party was born and spread (in which Marxism was seen as the most modern science of the time) and a movement of transformation called “New Culture”.

For some time now the Chinese Communist Party (CPC) has taken possession of the May 4th ideals and considered itself its direct heir.

Commemorating May 4th in the Great Hall of the People, member of the Political bureau Li Changchun, exalted their inheritance and underlined how the CPC leadership was a guarantee of modernity: “As long as we uphold the leadership of the CPC, the rejuvenation of the Chinese nation would certainly be realized”. In reference to the youth, he urged them to embrace “patriotism”, “diligence”, “devotion”, by studying hard and cultivating high moral standards. But no mention of democracy.

Numerous intellectuals are denouncing the Communist Party’s hijacking of May 4th for political gains. According to Prof. Zhang Ming, an expert on the Movement, the influence of May 4th is far wider. It inspired demonstrations against the Band of 4 in 1976, as well as those of Tiananmen in '89, which ended in massacre. All of these protests were spurred on by the element of “democracy” and demanded political reform. Even the intellectuals of the Charter 08 of 26/01/2009 (ref. AsiaNews.it, Charter 08, a plea for human rights in China | complete text) recalled the May 4th Movement and the betrayal of its ideals by the CPC, which transformed the ideal of the “sovereign people” into the modern reality in which the “party has all the power”.

The “stymied” memory of May 4th is also highlighted by another factor: the government refused permission for any organisation outside the CPC to commemorate the anniversary.

In 1942 Seeger formally joined the Communist Party. A staunch defender of the Soviet dictator Joseph Stalin, he saw himself as one of the Party's "artists in uniform" whose activism was rooted in the notion that "songs are weapons."

Utopian Communist dreams will always end in failure at the cost of millions dead http://www.globalmuseumoncommunism.org/
That is because communism requires strick adherence. Loss of individual freedoms. And a diktator to enforce the rules by the end of a rifle's barrel.
There is no other way for socialism and communism to florish - at the expense of your freedom and likly your life.
There is not a single successful example of Socialism/Communism.

Capitalism affords the individual to freely choose what is best for himself and his family. Reality and expereince has proven this fact over and over again and again.
Ultimately capitalism will ALWAYS prevail because it is a natural human trait.

Now watch the Neo-Commie spin meisters twist and turn with propaganda machinations.

If there was a large call for a movie staring Christ, there would be one shown.
I giuess that those shown in the past didn't get a high enough rating.
How about digging out your cash and running one as an ad?

And what about winners such as Phelps, Jim and Tammy Faye Bakker, Tedd Haggard, Jimmy Swaggart, Benny Hinn, Paula White, Eddie Long, etc., etc.? Christianity needs to look to its own house before criticizing others.

So which do you hate? The sin or the sinner?

How dare you be rational!

Let's add to the rationality.

Is it not equally valid (or equally obsurd, depending upon your viewpoint) to believe either that God has always existed and created the universe(s) or that the universe(s) have always existed? Fact is, we humans do not begin to have the mental facilities to understand infinity as anything more than a base concept.

You should try something else besides the clown act. Maybe things will improve for you.

I've never mailed reports for QSL cards. It must be nice to have those physical reminders of the good times in the past.

HCJB always had this corny serial called unshackled. I ended up listening to a number of them just to hear that organ music.

You think that guy might still be around? You ought to see if you can find him and write him a letter.

The DSP is digital signal processing. The processor reduces noise.

Maybe Telemundoh IS a TV evangelist, scamming gullibles for their cash, living in a mansion while his "flock" are living in trailers, tithing their 10% (Verified by their tax info, like a couple of the slimier churches do around here). Money many of them need a lot more than the preacher needs a new car, or the church needs a bigger, fancier building.

I wonder if Telemundoh has "hair issues", like many of the TV preachers do?

LOL. Sad thing is, I don't believe most of what I say about you, Telemundoh, unlike you, who seemingly takes all my goofing on you absolutely seriously.

Things are going very well for me, Telemundoh. I make a decent living, live in a nice house, and drive a year old car. I have a 15 years younger girlfriend too, so tell me what could make it all that much better for me? I suppose if I hit the lottery, that would be nice.

Exactly Brenda Ann, that is why when someone (and it always happens because they know you can give only one answer) comes back with "well, who created God?" As you said, the human mind is incapable of thinking about the word "infinity." It's fun for a moment to think about it, but your mind hits a wall because it's incapable of thinking about it.

WND reported? LOL. the lunatic fringe pseudo-press does not count.

Show me a credible, MAINSTREAM media report on this. It's so marginally newsworthy to anyone except the terminally stupid (Rush, Hannity, etc.) as to resist serious coverage in the real media.

Speaking of which, excellent news on the promoting marriage and

You have that right. Obamasux is delusional at best, and probably clinically insane from suppressing and/or dancing around the basic rules of logic and evidence. That his position is rapidly losing support does not seem to keep his reality check from bouncing.

Sigh, how pathetic.

As usual, trying to justify torture by what some barbarians do in other countries.
First, it's well-established that torture took place. It is also well-established that the US military ruled dozens of deaths in Bagram as homicides. There is no disputing these easily-accessed facts from their direct sources.

It is also well-established that the US prosecuted and punished Japanese military leaders and soldiers for torture for waterboarding our soldiers during World War II. It's also well-established that waterboarding is, as a matter of law, torture, despite some pathetic attempts to re-define the law which hold no legal weight or authority and violate prior treaty obligations such as the Geneva Convention.

Moreover, and perhaps most damning, torture is worthless for gaining intelligence. Even the Nazis stopped doing it because it generates so much false intelligence. It's simply a fact that torture is primarily useful for extracting false confessions (which were gotten by the thousands as many "witches" confessed to their "witchcraft" during the Inquisition.) The tortured person simply tells the interrogator what he thinks they want to hear based on the line of questioning, to make it stop.

In fact, torture was used extensively to "prove" that Iraq had WMDs that they didn't have. The faulty intelligence gathered this was was at best misleading and at worst deliberate propaganda to sell an war for political reasons.

At any rate, only a creep would defend US behavior at Abu Grahib or Bagram. Only an un-American with no clue what our values are.

There was no debate here either. The perps hid behind secrecy and did their level best to prevent we, the people, from ever learning about the torture (in at least one comprehensively documented case, totally innocent person tortured to death by the US.) Lying creeps Cheney and Bush, Rumsfeldt, et. al. painted the embarassing actions at Abu Grahib as the actions of a few "bad apples", and let them go to prison for following their Administration's orders. What can you say about these dishonorable men except they are liars and criminals?

As far as "they did it!" as a defense for committing a crime, that's just childish. To follow Obamasux's idiotic logic, if radical religious nuts cut off the head of an American, then we ought to start capturing civilians and killing them too.
I'm sure the next step is "Well, the Nazis did it, so we can too."
Bleh. What a childish morally deficient idiot this Obamasux is.

Considering the horrible mess Obama inherited from Bush/Cheney, an approval rating like this is such hard times is a sure sign that the public likes how this Administration has taken charge and gotten right to work. [IIRC, "W" was on vacation instead of working an awful lot of his first term, and demonstrated a new high in incompetence by failing to lead during Katrina. The American people are sure glad to have competence in office again, as reflected in these almost unprecedented numbers.]

The Great Communicator speaks, and people tune in to listen to him: Obama has this effect almost anywhere he goes. And they condemn him for being popular, like it's a bad thing. LOL.

A good comparison would be "what was Hoover's approval rating 100 days into the Great Depression, or what was Roosevelt's rating 100 days into his first term? These would be appropriate comparisons.
Comparing Obama's popularity with Bush, who inherited peace, prosperity, and the US at a high point on the world stage, is ridiculous.

Actually, it can do way more than that. For instance, IF filtering in the digital domain can potentially yield vitrual filters of continuously variable bandwidth and perfect shape factors unattainable with ceramic or crystal filters and at minimal cost. For more insight how this can be done right, read the reviews of the Sony HD tuner - a $99 box with advanced DSP functions which flat out beats any previously produced high-end AM/FM tuner at any price.

Psychotherapy for liberals
By James Lewis

Talking with liberals is frustrating, because you can't just talk about facts. That will only get them all upset, and all they will get out of the experience is never to listen to people like you. Most liberals live in their heads, or in little fluffy white clouds floating right above their scalps and resist efforts to engage them in rational conversation.

Our media are perfect examples. They never learn. They never listen to any other points of view. They know they have nothing to learn. Intellectually they are stuck, stuck, stuck.

(That's why the media are finally going bankrupt, thank goodness. But for years they got away with an endless parade of flagrant nonsense. Some of them still do. It's embarrassing.)

Talking to liberals is very much like doing therapy. The first lesson any psychiatrist learns is that most clients don't listen. They only pretend to listen, and then they never follow any sensible advice. So talking doesn't do the trick. It never does. If talking helped, they wouldn't be there in the first place.

So what do you do?

You wait for life to happen.

And then slowly, a tiny little bit at a time, you gently point out the ways in which clients defeat themselves, over and over again.

Therapists don't change people. Life does -- sometimes, if we are lucky and very patient.

A good therapist can turn life into learning opportunities. But you have to be very, very patient and forbearing. And the client has to be pretty desperate to learn.

Talking to liberals is like that. As the Obamanistas run out their string of self-celebration, preening and prancing before the world's media, as they keep bumping into the harsh walls of reality, getting a bloody nose here, a black eye there, there will be life lessons galore. Every day will bring new lessons. Already, the Obees are acting like George W. Bush in Afghanistan and Iraq -- notice that? Their actions don't differ in any visible way from the most scapegoated administration in history; all they've changed is their talk.

Big deal.

On the economy they're hopeless. Already Midwestern Democrats have refused to commit political suicide with carbon Cap and Trade. So that is going nowhere.

As the economic downturn starts to bite, watch for the Obees to blame Republicans for not saving them from their folly. It is crucial for Republicans to remind the American people that they do not approve of Obama's egomaniacal fantasies. Hold fast, ride out the storm, and the people will come around when they feel their pain.

If the United States of America is very lucky, Obama -- who always acts like a bright grad student, always hopping up to prove how well he has learned his lessons -- Obama, as I say, may learn to avoid the biggest international traps and pitfalls.

If we are lucky.

If not, the United States will get Carterized again and again -- in Iran, with Russia, the Middle East and the UN. Those are all the places where Jimmy Carter got royal bloody noses. And then blamed the Republicans for his mistakes.

With Yasser Arafat and the Palestinians, Jimmy Carter twisted Israeli arms over and over again, and finally got a so-called peace agreement that never worked. He walked away with a Nobel Prize from the suckered Oslo Nobel Committee, but no real success on the ground. Guess who got the blame for those failures? When somebody is mentally stuck, they only have one story to tell, no matter how reality turns out. They just have to blame other people for their disasters -- the alternative is to blame themselves, and they are not capable of doing that.

With Russia, Brezhnev invaded Afghanistan after telling Jimmy he wouldn't, and with Iran, Jimmy Carter enabled the worst medieval throwback tyrant of modern times, Ayatollah Khomeini, to take over the fastest-modernizing country in the Middle East and drive it back to the Dark Ages. Iranians are immensely talented people. In the West they do extremely well, when their opportunities are not limited and their lives are not oppressed.

But in Iran itself the last three decades have been painful for no reason at all. The war between Iran and Saddam Hussein cost a million lives. Saddam would not have attacked Iran with the Shah in charge, because the United States would have backed the Shah. The Shah would not have sent teenage "martyrs" on motorcycles into minefields to open the way up for his assault troops. The Shah, even with all his flaws, was a great modernizer, and would have spared his people endless pain and suffering. Today Iran would be a model of Islamic modernism but for our hero Jimmy Carter. But now it threatens a nuclear arms race in the Middle East, one that can spread the plague to the whole world.

Carter didn't like the Shah, and allowed him to be overthrown out of sheer, liberal guilt for what the United States did to Iran's Prime Minister Mossadegh in 1954, twenty years before Carter came to power.

See how well liberal guilt works in the Hobbesian "world community"? The world is not a "community." It is a wilderness full of predators. Liberals are just like that woman in the Berlin zoo who decided to jump into the polar bear enclosure, and got chomped. Want to understand Vladimir Putin? Remember that polar bear.

What we are seeing today with Obama is a neurotic repetition compulsion. All the things that didn't work for Jimmy are being tried again by Barry O. They will end up not working again. Only a fool could be surprised.

Obama is a natural follow-up act for Carter. Right now he looks like Jimmy Carter, Jr., with even more self-righteous arrogance and even more towering folly -- which is quite an accomplishment. Oh, yes, and he's black, which delights the media, because our media airheads always confuse symbolism with substance. But being black is only skin-deep. It doesn't guarantee anything. You have to be a fool to believe otherwise.

Being our first black president won't save Obama from the consequences of his arrogance. Nor will it save the country. Sorry about that. Reality always gets the final vote.

We have never seen an administration that lived more in its heads and less on Planet Earth -- the real earth, that is, not the fantasy dream of Mother Gaia. We have never seen a more mentally stuck power-mad gaggle of innocents abroad. Their mistakes will mirror their arrogance.

The prancing and preening Obama crowd is a natural victim for all the con artists in the world -- and that's practically every real enemy of the United States and Western civilization.

That's the way it is. Get used to it, because any therapeutic intervention first requires them to bump into reality. Just listen for the loud bangs as they go bouncing off the walls.

We can predict the Obama administration will run into trouble, because they have set out plans that are self-contradictory and doomed to failure. We also know what will happen when they fail really big: They will blame the grown-ups. That's what such people do. It's how they keep their self-esteem in the face of repeated failures.

The question is not, "Will they blame the rest of us?" They are bound to.

Rather, the adult question is: How can we protect the United States and the civilized world, even with mentally stuck Keystone Cops in charge?

Take just one little example, a very minor blooper, but one that defines this administration: The PR disaster of flying an Air Force One backup plane right over the Statue of Liberty, with an F-16 on its tail. Those are serious planes, with serious purposes. They are not manufactured to make pretty pictures. But that's evidently what the White House thinks they are for. It's like a kid trying to drive his Dad's car because it looks so cool.

The fly-over freaked out New Yorkers, as all sensible people knew in advance. But the White House still did it. Bottom line: PR considerations and a power-hungry, mentally stuck White House overrode simple common sense.

Sounds just like therapy, right? We know the White House was advised not to do this. But good advice has no effect on people who just want to keep bashing their heads into brick walls.

This is not the only mad PR move of the Obamanites. PR is really important to them. That's how they think they won; and with too many voters, it was how they won. They are mostly PR. The styrofoam Greek columns were another one. Promising to stop the rising seas was another one. Michelle's $540.00 tennies at the charity affair for poor people is another one. The iPod for the Queen and the deep bow for the King of Saudi were two more.

In fact, the Obama team has constantly overreached on public relations stunts. They have a predilection for that. It's part of their predictable neurosis. And eventually, when people get the joke, they will run head-on into a brick wall of public laughter. They will never laugh at themselves, nor confess their arrogance and ignorance. They can only steam straight ahead, running right into that looming wall. Again.

And when they do, the rest of us have to be ready just to point out the obvious.

It's beginning already.

Don't expect quick results, just remember that reality always gets the last vote.

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE
Contact: The SubGenius Foundation, Inc. 1-216-320-9528
Fax: (216) 320-9528
stang@subgenius.com

CLEVELAND, Ohio, April 5, 2009: The Church of the SubGenius has announced that the end of the world will take place on Sunday, July 5, 2009. In preparation for the fulfillment of this doomsday prophecy, the Church is requesting that all of its members participate in a festival with rock concerts and blasphemous rituals taking place in upstate New York, during the final weekend before the arrival of the apocalypse.

The Church of the SubGenius is a religious organization often accused of being a "parody" of religious cults, including Scientology, the Raelians, the Unification Church, and racist hate groups such as Christian Identity. The organization is widely seen as a satire that mocks organized religion, or as the church describes itself, "a cynisacreligion."

Since its inception in 1953, Church founder J.R. "Bob" Dobbs has predicted that a fleet of flying saucers will arrive at the beginning of July to destroy the worldwide Conspiracy against the Church of the SubGenius, while all ordained SubGenius ministers will be rescued by escape vessels piloted by the Alien Sex Goddesses, also known as the Xists.

The Church is inviting all of its members worldwide to gather together for the final hours in Sherman, New York from Wednesday, July 1 to Sunday, July 5, at a clothing-optional outdoor campground called Brushwood Folklore Center. The first gathering at this compound took place in 1996, and the event has increased in size and participants each following year. 1998 was designated the first true "X-Day," and each successive year has added one to the total. This year's celebration in 2009 is X-Day 12, or X-Day XII.

The Church has been engaged in a massive recruitment campaign to increase the numbers of its membership before the arrival of the Xists. According to Church records, the organization currently has approximately 100,000 members worldwide. SubGenius recruitment has been especially dedicated among the ranks of people who refuse to conform to the norms of society, including disbelievers, blasphemers,

The Church is seeking performers and producers from the adult entertainment industry in particular, because sexual freedom has been an important part of Church doctrine from the start. X-Day will be a celebration of free expression, performance art, rock and roll, pornography, and adult entertainment; and certain parts of the event will be restricted to adults only. Only ordained ministers of the Church of the SubGenius are allowed at the event, but the Church is accepting memberships at its standard rate of $30 up until the final hours of July 4.

The Church of the SubGenius has been no stranger to controversy since its foundation, and the upcoming X-Day celebration promises to be no different. In the late 1980s, members of the Church were accused of spreading a virus in Macintosh computers known as the "Peace Virus." Numerous articles have been written on the Church in such noteworthy publications as the New York Times, Washington Post, Wired Online, Boston Globe, U.S. News and World Report; and broadcast reports have been produced by CNN and NPR. In April 1999, officials of the city of Cambridge, Massachusetts shut down an official SubGenius Devival gathering in the belief that the Church was affiliated with the Trenchcoat Mafia (the organization blamed for the Columbine high school shootings), though authorities later realized the association was mistaken. In its January 1, 2000 issue, a Time magazine poll declared J.R. "Bob" Dobbs the biggest fraud of the 20th century.

The Church received additional media attention in 2006 when one of its high-ranking members, known in SubGenius circles as Reverend Mary Magdalen, became involved in a legal battle for custody of her son due to her membership in the Church. This case has been covered in such popular online sites as Boing Boing, Fark, and Wikinews (Wikipedia's news reporting service).

Detailed information about X-Day can be found on the World Wide Web at the X-Day Web site:

The Zune has only 4% of the MP3 market-place - LOL! Besides, the HD chipsets still are way to power-hungry. What are they going to use for antenas - the headphones - LOL! This is still rumor, probably fueled by iBiquity and the HD Alliance.

West Has Already Won War with Islam, Says Leading Geopolitical Analyst

With the Taliban on the march in Pakistan, Osama bin Laden still unaccounted for, attacks against U.S. troops in Iraq rising again and Afghanistan a quagmire, it would seem the war against jihadist Islam is only accelerating in intensity.
But what if it's already all over but the shouting?
"It is debatable whether the U.S. has actually won the U.S.-jihadist war - but it has certainly achieved its strategic goals," - preventing another 9/11 and avoiding jihadist uprising in the Arab world, George

Friedman, founder of STRATFOR, writes in his latest book The Next 100 Years. "The U.S. has succeeded, not so much in winning the war as in preventing the Islamists from winning and, from a geopolitical perspective, that is good enough."
Friedman expands up this theory in the accompany video, where we discuss the following:
• What he calls the "fundamental weakness" of the Muslim world.
• The likely endgame in Afghanistan, where he says the U.S. "cannot win."
• The potential for a jihadist uprising in Turkey, which Friedman sees as one of the great regional powers of the 21st Century.
• The likelihood of Pakistan falling into Taliban control, if it hasn't already.
• The "real" meaning of Iran's rhetorical threats.
• Whether Bin Laden is better captured and put on trial, dead, or alive and isolated. And whether Al Qaeda is still able to carry out major terrorist attacks today.

Heck, you tried to "steal" a PhD by claiming to have one when you really didn't!

They've hired at least one dufus who once claimed to have a PhD, and who knows, there may be more dufi there.

I remember seeing PTL the first time, and I was nearly convinced it was a put on. The first thing I saw was Tammy in mid melt down, with the Raccoon eyes and mascara running down. I watched it every chance I got, it was hilarious. I couldn't believe it when I read in some magazine that Jim Bakker was considered one of the most sincere TV preachers. I thought he was about the least sincere of them all.

Liberal Commandments
1. Thou shalt always be a victim.
2. Spend thy Neighbors money to keep your Brothers in the comfort zone, that which makes him happy.
3. That which is not Liberal is Evil, use any means possible to promote Liberal/socialist agenda.
4. Do not covet Success and achievement, teach others to strive for mediocrity.
5. Show your enemy your Bluster, before whining like a child.
6. Government is the only religion of man, serve no other cause.
7. Tithe all you have and will have to our cause, for that which is not spent, will come back.
8. Believe in unconditional Peace and Love, so then shall you become self important and omnipotent.
9. The truth of everything is that which you make it.
10. Life is above all else... until it would interfere with ones choice.

Sounds reasonable to me.

There is a guy who cut his own hand off to save himself. Would he have done it so he could save his family? You need to ask him, he has experience cutting off limbs.

I wouldn't hesitate.

Would you get in a box and go careening down hills at 10 times your natural speed to get food to feed your children?

Think about it when you climb into your car to go to work.

Is a personal opinion based totally on feelings or do facts usually play a part in making an opinion? You have to have just fallen off the turnip truck if you bas your opinions on feelings. You're not a moron, you're an idiot.

- preventing another 9/11 and

Preventing another 9/11 Attack on US Soil is at best a short-term Strategic Goal that is measured one day at a time until the next Mega Attack and these Terrorist Attacks may occur Decades Apart because for the Islam-O-Fascist Terrorist the Propaganda Value of these Attacks lasts for Years and Decades; and they believe that their Jihad is for their Lifetimes and Generations to come.

The reality is that the Islamists the Jihad Against 'The West' and Christianity is a Hundred Year War that is renewed each Century.

Only a Fool Thinks that the Jihadists have given-up.

The Jihadist would very much like it for The West to think that it has given-up and have The West to Let It Guard Down.

- avoiding jihadist uprising in the Arab world,

Jihadism is still very much alive in the Arab World and is a significant Faction of Islam in all areas of the Globe where Islam is a Major Religion.

Only a Fool Thinks that the Jihad is Dead in the Arab World and across the Globe.

For the Jihadist each Islamic Country is a potential Afghanistan and only a decade away from becoming a Religious State Committed to Jihad for all Eternity.

Generally for Muslims living within Predomitly Islamic Countries the numbers roll-out to be :
* 3%~5% say that they would Do Jihad Against
"The West" : Become Fighters and Wage War.
* 25%~33% say that they Believe Jihad Against "The West" is a Just Act under Islam; and Justified.
* 17%~22% say that they would Support Jihad Against "The West" with Money; Aid, Shelter, Food and Supplies.

Clearly Jihad is Alive And Well In Islam -and-Only Fools Think Otherwise. ~ RHF {ibid} their largest recruiting tool is about to face charges because ronald reagan understood what torture does to a country that is its recipient, and the country that is the perp.

man, conservatives are the most god awful stupidest people on the planet. its a treaty we entered into under the republican party.
federal treaties become the law of the land.
By giving its advice and consent to ratification of this Convention, the Senate of the United States will demonstrate unequivocally our desire to bring an end to the abhorrent practice of torture. RONALD

U.S. signs UN convention against torture
US Department of State Bulletin , August, 1988
• 1 Following are the President's message to the Senate and the text of the Convention Against Torture and Other Cruel, Inhuman or Degrading Treatment or Punishment signed on behalf of the United States by Deputy Secretary of State John C. Whitehead on April 18, 1988, at the United Nations. The United States became the 63d nation to sign the convention, which was adopted by the UN General Assembly in December 1984 and entered into force on June 26, 198 7, after it was ratified by 20 nations.
MESSAGE TO THE SENATE, MAY 20, 1988.sup.1
With a view to receiving the advice and consent of the Senate to ratification, subject to certain reservations, understandings, and declarations, I transmit herewith the Convention against Torture and Other Cruel, Inhuman or Degrading Treatment or Punishment. The Convention was adopted by unanimous agreement of the United Nations

General Assembly on December 10, 1984, and entered into force on June 26, 1987. The United States signed it on April 18, 1988. 1 also transmit, for the information of the Senate, the report of the Department of State on the Convention.

The United States participated actively and effectively in the negotiation of the Convention . It marks a significant step in the development during this century of international measures against torture and other inhuman treatment or punishment. Ratification of the Convention by the United States will clearly express United States opposition to torture, an abhorrent practice unfortunately still prevalent in the world today.

The core provisions of the Convention establish a regime for international cooperation in the criminal prosecution of torturers relying on so-called "universal jurisdiction." Each State Party is required either to prosecute torturers who are found in its territory or to extradite them to other countries for prosecution.

In view of the large number of States concerned, it was not possible to negotiate a treaty that was acceptable to the United States in all respects. Accordingly, certain reservations, understandings, and declarations have been drafted, which are discussed in the report of the Department of State. With the inclusion of these reservations, understandings, and declarations, I believe there are no constitutional or other legal obstacles to United States ratification,

The recommended legislation necessary to implement the Convention will be submitted to the Congress separately.

Should the Senate give its advice and consent to ratification of the Convention, I intend at the time of deposit of United States ratification to make a declaration pursuant to Article 28 that the United States does not recognize the competence of the Committee against Torture under Article 20 to make confidential investigations of charges that torture is being systematically practiced in the United States. In addition, I intend not to make declarations, pursuant to Articles 21 and 22 of the Convention, recognizing the competence of the Committee against Torture to receive and consider communications from States and individuals alleging that the United States is violating the Convention. I believe that a final United States decision as to whether to accept such competence of the Committee should be withheld until we have had an opportunity to assess the Committee's work. It would be possible for the United States in the future to accept the competence of the Committee pursuant to Articles 20, 21, and 22, should experience with the Committee prove satisfactory and should the United States consider this step desirable.

By giving its advice and consent to ratification of this Convention, the Senate of the United States will demonstrate unequivocally our desire to bring an end to the abhorrent practice of torture.

RONALD REAGAN

TEXT OF CONVENTION2
Convention Against Torture and Other Cruel, Inhuman or Degrading Treatment or Punishment
The States Parties to this Convention,
Considering that, in accordance with the principles proclaimed in the Charter of the United Nations, recognition of the equal and inalienable rights of all members of the human family in the foundation of freedom, justice and peace in the world,
Recognizing that those rights derive from the inherent dignity of the human person, Considering the obligation of States under the Charter, in particular Article 55, to promote universal respect for, and observance of, human rights and fundamental freedoms, Having regard to Article 5 of the Universal Declaration of Human Rights and article 7 of the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights, both of which provide that no one shall be subjected to torture or to cruel, inhuman or degrading treatment or punishment.
Having regard also to the Declaration on the Protection of All Persons from Being Subjected to Torture and Other Cruel, Inhuman or Degrading Treatment or Punishment, adopted by the General Assembly on 9 December 1975.
Desiring to make more effective the struggle against torture and other cruel, inhuman or degrading treatment or punishment throughout the world.

List, not street price. Also out of stock.

Um, No. Obama said this was already covered under existing Illinois law -- which it is. Illinois Law 720 ILCS 510.6.

I have asked repeatedly to give me one site where Obama voted for Partial birth abortion or Against the bills that would stop it. He can't provide me with any. Here is his latest response his is where Telamon continues his conservallon comedy routine. He tells me here is a link where Obama speaks on the issue. The link is to the Al Smith Comedy Dinner. Teladummy's response is for me to wade through all of the speeches till I find the relevant speech. LOL LOL. This guy is too stupid to link to any of the speeches. I can't belive you guys lost the election. Really. I just can't.

That's a fine radio. Let us know how you do with it by posting here. Be sure to put up a good antenna. A good antenna is as important as the radio.

I missed the lunch but there is a big fire going on right now in the hills above Santa Barbara. There was plenty of smoke in the sky over the ocean off Ventura just before sunset.

Heh, at about 6:00 PM this evening, I sawed about halfway through one of those trees by my driveway.The top branches of that tree, there are some wires from the power pole by the end of my driveway going to that vacant house next door through the branches of that tree.The tree trunk is about four inches thick.I figured I better stop sawing before that tree tears those wires down.Eventually, that tree will topple on over anyway.Maybe tomorrow I better do something about that tree.

OK, that didn't last long. They are now off again at 04:31 AM, the carrier then comes back up in DRM for about 30 seconds and now gone for another 30 seconds. 04:32 they back on AM mode. What could happen next?

i am not for right wing demagoguery.

I, personally, am against torture, the death penalty, abortion for any purpose other than saving the life of the mother. I am for life imprisonment. I feel that is a just punishment for murder, rape, etc.

LOL, that second pic is great! I had never heard of him until I watched the end of the PTL club and the the 700 club came on. I could almost feel the slime coming through my TV. One of the religious whackos I used to work with told us that when Clinton was impeached, that old Pat would run against Gore in 2000, and be the next POTUS. We laughed a long long time over that one. He got very upset, and said, "You'll see!". Of course, he was strangely silent when he didn't even get the GOP nomination.

We have a real winner here locally, this guy, Michael Pitts:

DESPITE INQUIRY, CHURCH SAYS PASTOR STILL ITS CORNERSTONE JOKES RIDICULE PITTS; PRAYERS SUPPORT HIM

BY GEORGE J. TANBER BLADE STAFF WRITER

Pastor Robert Pitts is frustrated and weary.

He sits in his office at Cornerstone Church on Reynolds Road in South Toledo, a congregation he and his brother, Pastor Michael Pitts, started in 1987. Today it has 5,500 members. That makes Cornerstone one of the area's largest churches.

And the wealthiest.

Its 58,000-square-foot Reynolds Road building, a former super drug store, was remodeled at a cost of about $1.5 million and includes 30 classrooms. Its sanctuary looks like a movie set for The Pat Robertson Story.

So Robert Pitts, 34, who serves as Cornerstone's de facto CEO, should be feeling flush. He's not.

His 33-year-old brother, Lucas County's most well-known televangelist, faces 10 misdemeanor counts of exposing himself in public.

Michael Pitts has court dates in Toledo, Wauseon, and Maumee during the next several months. On Nov. 18, a Lucas County woman testified in Toledo Municipal Court that Mr. Pitts masturbated in front of her in the parking lot of a South Toledo store.

If found guilty, Mr. Pitts could face up to 30 days in jail and a $250 fine for each charge.

His arrests have been the talk of Toledo. Crude jokes about Mr. Pitts have been making the rounds at bars, dinner tables, and office coffee breaks.

Shortly after he was first charged, a "Mornings are the Pitts" billboard went up in West Toledo with a photograph of radio jock Denny Schaffer portraying the pastor with his pants down.

And unflattering imitations of Pastor Pitts made the rounds at Halloween parties in Toledo and as far away as Kelleys Island.

"It's been difficult on our family seeing a brother, a son, face this barrage of accusations," Robert Pitts said in his office, which is as large and homey as a family den.

Robert Pitts has been spending much of his time conferring with his brother's four attorneys and a private investigator, all of whom earn $150 an hour and more, sources said.

As a result, the Pitts defense could end up being the most expensive misdemeanor case in the history of Lucas County.

Even before his legal problems, Michael Pitts was one of the area's most recognized pastors. His half-hour program, Present Truth, runs every weekday on WUPW-TV, Channel 36, at 1:30 p.m. He has been featured in a number of TV commercials promoting Cornerstone Church.

Michael Pitts, who declined to be interviewed for this article, has pleaded not guilty to all charges.

"I feel like Elvis Presley. I'm being sighted at places I've never been," he said in an earlier interview.

Although investigators and prosecutors spent months on the cases before filing their charges, one piece of evidence in several of the incidents in which Pastor Pitts is charged - a video investigators have said shows him committing indecent acts near Oak Openings Metropark - is so unclear that the person in it is unidentifiable.

Mr. Pitts's defense team also will raise the fact that a Lucas County sheriff's deputy who bears a resemblance to Mr. Pitts has been charged with a similar indecent exposure charge during the same period Mr. Pitts is accused of exposing himself, sources said.

Despite the controversy surrounding their pastor, most Cornerstone members have rallied around Mr. Pitts.

Many of them have declined to speak to the press.

The general feeling among them is that Mr. Pitts has been unfairly maligned by the media, which has led to his negative image despite the lack of any conviction.

"We love him. He's not guilty," said Vera Garman, a Cornerstone member four years.

On Election Day at the Glendale-Feilbach Elementary School, one Cornerstone member refused to be interviewed by a Blade reporter asking her whom she voted for in the mayor's race.

She walked away, but soon returned to explain.

"I hope you realize the sins you're committing," said the woman, who did not identify herself. "If you read the Bible, you know what happens to people who try to hurt a man of God."

So the question remains, which is Pastor Michael Pitts - saint or sinner?

XXXXXXXXXXXXXXXXXXXXXXXXXXXXXXXXXXXXXXXXXXXXXXXXXXXXXXXXXXXXXXXXXXXXXXXXXXX

Somehow, the woman who claimed to see him masturbating, suddenly "wasn't sure" when she was on the witness stand.

I wonder what she spent the money on?

I met him at a friend's party (He lived down the street then), and I had no idea who or what he was, but he gave off such a creep vibe, I can't believe there are so many who don't see and/or feel it.

In a way, yes, of course. The boob thing actually happened, the Obama BC

LOL, that's great Telemundoh. It's already plain that you believe in all kinds of other kooky stuff, so I shouldn't be surprised, should I?

After all, anyone who believes in the Obama BC nonsense has a blown kooktardery filter anyway. I would imagine replacement parts aren't

KFI has been having some problems with the new Nautel transmitter, and is using the DX 50 instead; it's not HD equipped. The HD will be back when the issues are resolved.

I hope they don't turn the HD back on.

The signal level looks like it dropped a little.

Is the backup transmitter on the same antenna?

Clear Channel's West Coast flagship station has no competent engineering staff? Jesus Gawd, theyve been fucked-up for YEARS!!!

British authorities deem radio host Michael Savage the equivalent of mass-murdering terrorists.

The answer is that torture doesn't work. The answer is that you, personally, want to watch. You get your rocks off by hearing about torture. You are a coward.

But so what, you want to watch other people being tortured. Not that torture ever reveals anything, how many witches got burned do you think? How many satanists?

The fact is that all the persons involved in torture are criminally culpable. The fact that they won't be brought to trial shows what prosecutorial discretion is.

New model transmitters often have design issues that only show up in the field... it's possible part of it even had to go back to the Maritimes for modification. Unless they issue a press release, which is unlikely for a technical issue, we won't know exactly what is at the cause.

This is why stations have auxiliary transmitters and even, in the case of KFI, auxiliary antennas.

Clear Channel's West Coast flagship station is KIIS, not KFI. It might even be said that KIIS is the entire company's flagship station.

It's a DX 50. Few of the 70's vintage MW series are in use any more, thankfully. And the auxiliary runs, like the main, into the pseudo half wave tower. Alternate main means it is used regularly, while an aux is a backup.
The DX 50 is definitely a backup to the Nautel.

I was born in Cornwash Georgia in 1925. My father was a bar back who cleaned the spittoons and toilets at Willies bar. He had trouble getting decentv work because he had this habit of flashing people on Saturday night. Everytime he got liquored up we would get a call from the police saying they caught him with his pants down again. Fidel and Juvon were farmhands down the road on the Donniger property. They were both coal black and always sweaty. When I was 15 I started thinking how much I would like to do them at the same time. I was coming of age and finding my true destiny.

I could take 2 dicks at one time when I was younger. Fidel and Juvon used to fuck me at the same time and it was good. They would shoot their loads about the same time and my mouth would get thirsty quickly. My ass was voted the best of 1940. It still has a few miles left on it but I can't keep from shitting on my partners dick. I was fucking the brothers before affirmative action dictated that all the fat and ugly white women could be violated by the bucks. I used to get 15 dollars a pop and that was when the sisters and poor white trash were getting $13.50. Fidel used to say my asshole was haunted because everytime he went to felch me he heard something like "HELLO" come out of my butt. I think it was the wood alcohol he used to drink.
That crazy niggra drank shaving lotion also. He used to see spiders on his body and Martians in the sky but he was the best pussy eating jiggaboo on earth! I hated it when they found him dead in his garden. When he died he shit his pants and turned grey. He looked a bit like Michael Jackson. Of course we hadn't heard of that molester yet. It's a wonder all the dangerous booze I drank didn't have an effect on my children. Well .. looking at Scott Salberg perhaps the bathtub gin or the thalidomide did him in. My children all had different fathers. Scott's father was a pedophile. I walked in on him and found him substituting his dick for Scott's pacifier. That's probably why Scott turned queer. He tried to fuck his brother Chris until Chris cried so loud he alerted theneighbors. I tried to teach him a trade, how to steal without getting caught he was too stupid to catch on . He told on himself and told them I taught it to him. He's lucky I didn't get busted or I would have beat his ratting ass with a baseball bat.

That's gratitude for you and naturally it came from the fucking fag of the family. My son Chris had a worthless father also.
He robbed people on drug deals. He told them he could get them drugs and skipped out with their money. One of them shot at me with a pistol and I had nothing to do with it. As I sit back and contemplate my life

I wonder why I made the mistake of laying with jiggaboos and I wonder if my life would have been different if my babies fathers were white and respectable. It got old picking my husbands up out of the street every night because they were so fucked up they couldn't walk.

Scotts father had this habit of sticking his finger up my poop chute while I was sleeping. I used to wake up thinking I had to shit and there he was, salivating with brown fingers and a hard-on. Sometimes it made my crotch monkey wet to see the crazed lust in his eyes and the shit on his fingers! Sometimes we had such good times! It's a shame I caught him in bed with my father and had to divorce him. Mother begged me to overlook it saying "boys will be boys" but I just couldn't do it. Momma said it was just a phase and daddy used to go to bed with grandfather all the time. Momma said she would wait outside the door for them to finish. It usually took about an hour and when they came out, she would wipe Dad's chin and they would go home.

The term 'Protestants' bothers me. There must be 40 thousand PLUS different denominations in that classification, with each thinking the others are all going to burn.

Excuse me, the snake worshipping is about to begin..I have to go.

I have a feeling this may have to do with his "fumbled" attempts at stopping the RIAA royalties, which should help kill HD Radio. He "fumbled" the Internet royalties, and he has far from a majority-vote to block over-the-air royalties. Expect FMs to eventually flip to news/talk/sports formats, which some are already doing - what's HD Radio going to do?

The liberals always cry foul when the conversation turns to McCarthy

I have not heard them on either 15,720 or 13,730 from about 00:00 to nearly 01:00 UTC today.

RA is coming in fine on 16 meters.

Savage spends a lot of time screaming about people he thinks shouldn't be in this country, but he won't give another country the same benefit. Go figure.

Whatever that means.

Savage is just a loud-mouthed asshole. If that's "real" to you, enjoy.

Wrong again hockey puck. I recall GW pushing for "amnesty" for illegals. And protecting America after the gloves came off. I don't agree with Savage. But he is a non-violent person using his 1st amndment right to voice his discontent. McCarthy did the same thing to the Communist didn't he?

Here's a tool you can use when you don't like what you hear...

The frustration will diminish once you start posting original thoughts instead of having to cut-n-paste lemming food that, as far as we can tell is the only thought process you have. I the meantime, don't post items you have are able to defend or understand.

Problem solved!

So what do you call this, liberal dog turd logic? I've heard before that the logic liberals employ was not worth a dog's turd but this is the first time I've heard one owe up to it.

RA is coming in fine on 19 meters now and still no sign of RNZI on 19 or 22 meters. I'll have to check for them around 05:00 UTC to see if they show up on 25 meters per schedule.

Anyone ever solder to the traces on these things?
Any good things to say about conductive epoxy?

I have a couple of broken panels and want to fix them if easily possible. (To power my radios, of course...)

Any insights most welcome.

Are they old panels? They do deteriorate with time. You might have panels where the wafer cells stopped working.

If you can get it apart I suppose you could check around the panel with a volt meter to find out which wafers have broken connections if that is the problem.

If you find broken traces use a piece of wire over the break and solder with high temperature solder.

Nope, no Eye-talian in me, just French, Irish, Polish, and probably a Native American great grandmother, if we are decoding the messed up hunk of paper that shows my great grandfather's 2 wives listed as "Elisabeth and Squaw (We can't figure out the name after squaw)". Problem is, we don't know which one was the mother of what kids, as he had 8, and it's unclear how many with each wife, and there aren't any official records left to tell when the first wife died and when the second one came along. Judging from my mother, I would say her grandfather on that side was one of the "squaw's" kids.

Maybe I should get one of those DNA tests and become a casino owner.

I agree. They achieved more lies, swindling and hypocrisy then I could ever hope to muster. You, on the other hand, would be proud to fit in with them. I guess Haggard could fit in an opening for you.

If you were actually something of a challenge then I'd go out of my way to learn a few things to put you in the "home". As it is, you make it way too easy.

It's their friggin' country. They don't tell us what to do and we don't tell them.

Any other rights of theirs that anybody would like to step on? Maybe we should just open our borders to anybody who wants to come in?

England's leading by example: They get to decide who comes into their country. Not the US or anybody else. We've got all kinds of Al Qaieda types on the no-fly list. Just imagine if they all decided to sue Homeland Security.

Oh BS, there were a number of people posting here about it not just me.

I posted about court actions that people were taking around the country over the Obominators eligibility. I am not the originator of those actions and you know it.

The retarded Canadian act is getting old, try something else for a change of pace if you are able.

He probably does have "hair issues" but breaking out the Bylcreem won't help to make himself look slick. The best it can do is to make him more like "A pimp named Slickback".

I don't think you are capable of having an intelligent discussion. I don't think you are capable of making an intelligent post as I haven't seen one from you yet.
